HAD A CLOSE CALL.

Disastrous Blaze In a St. Louis Factory.

Six Hundred Employes in the Building

And Not One of Them Suffers Injury.

Valuable Service of Fire Escapes.

Cool Heads Among the Workmen and Firemen Prevent What Might Have Been an Awful Disaster.

St. Louis, March 18.—At 8:35 this morning fire started in the upper floor of the Liggett & Meyer tobacco factory and in quick succession, one, two and three alarms were sounded, followed by a general alarm which brought nearly every fire engine in the city to the scene.

The factory is seven stories in height and occupies the square bounded by Twelfth street, St. Charles and Thirteenth street.

At the time the blaze was discovered the factory was filled with about six hundred employes, including many women and young girls.

The building was well equipped with fire escapes and stairways and these were soon swarming with an excited mass of humanity.

The male employes showed remarkable coolness and rendered invaluable assistance to the women in descending the fire escapes, stairways and hastily improvised ladders.

Some of the women were overcome with fear and fainted, while many others were blinded by the heavy smoke which quickly filled the upper floors of the immense building.

These were picked up by their male companions and firemen and carried down the long stairways to places of safety. It was at first reported that a number of the employes had been overpowered by smoke and were being incinerated in the burning building.

Happily this rumor proved untrue, and the firemen state that no lives were lost and with the exception of slight bruises, no one was injured.

Owing to the highly inflammable character of the material which it fed upon the fire spread with great rapidity and in less than fifteen minutes the entire seventh story was a mass of seething flames which were fanned by a brisk wind across an alley and threatened to destroy the large tobacco storage warehouse adjoining, which contained thousands of tons of prepared tobacco.

Despite the hard work of the fire brigade the flames worked down through the seventh, sixth, fifth and fourth floors of the building and although nearly 50 huge streams of water were being poured into the blazing structure, it seemed for a time that the factory was doomed to destruction.

The firemen were retarded in their work by the dense volumes of pungent smoke and intense heat caused by the saturated tobacco.

After two hours' hard work the firemen succeeded in gaining control of the blaze and it is now believed the flames will be confined to the four upper floors.

The loss will probably reach $200,000. The fire is said to have started in the curing room on the top floor and was probably caused by spontaneous combustion.

ARE ALL SNOWED UNDER

Another Blizzard Raging In the East.

Trains Late and Navigation Blocked.

Thirteen Inches of the Beautiful Covers Up the Mud in Eastern Cities.

New York, March 18.—The snow which has been falling in this vicinity since last night did not cease until about 10 o'clock and it now lies about 11 inches on a level.

All incoming trains from two or three hours late and at the postoffice it is said that the mails are reported delayed in all quarters. The horse car and general traffic on the streets is much impeded and nearly all the cars and teams have been doubled up.

Pedestrianism is made most uncomfortable, especially in the down town streets where the steam heating pipes rapidly melt the snow and cause slush and mud, much to the discomfort of business men.

On the river and bay in the early morning navigation is fraught with considerable danger owing to the thickness of the snowstorm but so far no serious accident has been reported, although many of the Jersey and Staten Island steamers plow their way to their docks with considerable difficulty.

Reports from the coast report the snow storm as being very severe and the fall of snow the heaviest of the season.

The wind fortunately was moderate, which doubtless prevented many vessels from coming ashore.

In Jersey.

Newark, N. J., March 18.—A storm began at 9 o'clock last night and this morning there are 13 inches of snow on the ground. Horse car traffic is reported as being seriously impeded. At 8 o'clock this morning the mercury registered 28 in the city.

THE FUNERAL OF SNYDER.

It Was Largely Attended At Tiffin.

The Injured Men All Recovering With the Exception of Downey —Other Matters.

Tiffin, O., March 18.—(Special)—The last page in the history of Tiffin's greatest tragedy closed yesterday with the interment of Walter A. Snyder, the suicide and attempted assassin of three of his fellow laborers and associates in the hardware store of J. M. Naylor & Co., last Tuesday morning.

The services were held at 2 o'clock in the afternoon at the late home of the dead man, and were conducted under the auspices of Leander Stem post, G. A. R., of which he was a member.

Hundreds of citizens were in attendance and an impressive address was delivered by the Rev. Dr. N. S. Albright, pastor of St. Paul's M. E. church.

The body of the deceased was viewed by thousands during the three days that have intervened since the tragedy and the obsequies were the largest attended of any held in this city for many years, despite the disagreeable condition of the weather.

The pall bearers were chosen from among those who had seen service with the deceased on the field of battle, and were John T. Wood, Wm. Glick, Hiram Clevidence, Charles Harman, A. Bain and Jefferson Daywalt.

Snyder's intended victims, E. T. Naylor and B. W. Crobaugh, are still recovering, but the condition of T. W. Downey is not so favorable as on the day succeeding the tragedy.

Hunting for Gray.

The police are searching for Robert Gray, of Bloomville, who attempted to shoot Warren Opt in a saloon fracas in this city yesterday. Gray's arm was caught as he was about to fire at Opt, and he managed to elude arrest and make good his escape.

Burglars at Work.

Wm. Haines' general store in the village of Adrian was burglarized last night of $50 worth of clothing. Three tramps did the job, as indicated by the number of filthy suits of clothing that were left behind when the perpetrators departed encased in new outfits..

A GREAT BALL CLUB

Has Been Selected for the City of Toledo.

Brief Sketches of the New Men.

The Schedule for the Coming Season —Interesting Sporting Gossip on Various Subjects.

Hurly, catcher, was with Boston Brotherhood, went to Cincinnati with Mique Kelley, and did mostly all the catching while Kelley was off on his little excursions. He is a good man.

Shane, catcher, is not known in Toledo, but is highly recommended.

Dewald, pitcher, was Sioux City's star twirler last season. He is left handed and pitched his club into the pennant last fall. He was with the Cleveland Brotherhood club for a time, pitching two games against Boston, winning both, and one against New York, which he lost, although it was a close game. He is considered one of the coming pitchers of the day.

Pears is another Long John Healy, tall and slim with awful speed and good command. He has been with the Kansas City club three years and in that time has done much good work. He is an all around player and covered first base in good style when Danny Stearns was laid up last season.

Clark, Old Dad Clark, is known all over base balldom. He has been with Omaha four straight seasons and was considered by the Omahogs to be the best pitcher in the Western league. He is another Fred Smith and will go in against any club, at any time, and try his hardest to pitch the game to a victory. He was with Des Moines the year before he went to Omaha. He is a good batter and plays the outfield well. In fact Omaha put him in the field last year, when not in the box, on account of his hitting. When the Brotherhood row broke out three of four of the clubs claimed him, but when the bell tapped he was found true to his colors and was on the Omaha diamond winning games with striking regularity.

Campion, for first base, was with Milwaukee last year, and is one of the cleanest first basemen in the business. He went to Milwaukee from New Haven. He was very popular in the Cream City, is a hard hitter and good base runner. Campion was a pitcher in the old Northwestern league in which Toledo won the championship. He was with Saginaw then, and when McCormick jumped Cleveland Campion took his place in the Forest City.

Corbett was with St. Paul in 1888 and played a good second. He is active on the bases, fair hitter and a conscientious worker for a team's success. Last year he was with Burlington in the Two-Eyed league and was at the head of the second basemen of that league.

Newall was signed by Von der Ahe last fall to play third but later Pinckney was signed and Newall was released. He played in Pennsylvania last year and has the reputation of being a good batter and base runner.

Ely—get there—who will play short, was with Syracuse for three years and was a great favorite when playing against Toledo. He played wonderful ball last season for Brooklyn. When John Ward saw his play he relinquished short to him and went to second base himself. Fly is a good hitter and a clever man on the bases. Milwaukee club was after him all last year and he is considered a prize to the club. When Ely unjoints him for business he is a terror to ground hits, a nice pick-up, and rapid thrower to bases.

Armour, for the outfield, is reported to be a very clever man.

Nichol is the clever little man who won so much applause here when Columbus opened the association two years ago. He did phenomenal work in the field, batted well and was a great favorite. He was let go to make room for Ralph Johnson, the sound of whose base hits can be heard in this city yet. Last year Nichol was with Bradford, and has played with Des Moines. He is a good man.

Gettinger was two years in center field for Von der Ahe, going to that city with Silvitts. He is a good left-handed hitter, and was a rival of little Duffy, of the Browns, for the home-run record. When Gettinger went with the Browns O'Neill was laid off, and the new man was a terror with the stick.

Schaefer Going to Paris.

Chicago, March 18.—Jake Schaefer is going to Paris to show the Frenchmen how billiards should be played. He is going to show them in his own academy, too. The success that Eugene Carter has had in the French capital has tempted Jake to make a bold move and face the French lion in his den, as it were. He and Billy Catton, than whom there is no shrewder man in sporting circles, have figured out a scheme which for audacity and originality rivals anything attempted in sporting circles of late years.

After next Saturday's match with Frank Ives, should Jake win, he will accept Slosson's challenge. With this game out of the way he and Catton will sail for Paris and open an academy of their own, where they will be ready to meet all comers in their respective classes for any amount of money. Paris is now the Mecca of billiardists, and the Americans expect to make some money out of their scheme. Jake will not neglect his business here, but will probably make periodical trips to the French capital. If the academy is a success Catton will probably locate in Paris permanently and run the place. He and Jake are a trifle rusty in their French, but will probably pick it up rapidly.

It will be curious to note how the French experts will take this move. They are such a jealous, narrow-minded lot, it is said, that they will probably raise a dreadful cry when they find the Wizard in their midst. Even, however, should they attempt to boycott the room, Jake feels that there are enough Americans in Paris to make the place a success.

When Vignaux hears of Schaefer's move he is likely, it is thought, have a fit of ague. When he was in this country he was asked his opinion of the relative merits of Schaefer and Slosson. The reply was unique, to say the least. It was this: "I beat Slosson sure; I beat Schaefer—sometimes," and the shrug of the shoulders and rising inflection on the sometimes left no doubt that the wily Frenchman knew he was best off with the ocean between him and the Wizard.

With the advent of Schaefer and Catton in the French capital, sporting men say, there should be plenty of billiard matches. Carter is making money there, and a golden harvest probably awaits Schaefer.

The match between Schaefer and Ives, set for Saturday night at Central Music hall, is attracting wide attention from every quarter. Orders for tickets are being received from many outside points, and delegations from Cincinnati, Milwaukee, Cleveland and Pittsburg have already secured seats in advance. The indications are that the house will be crowded. Schaefer's name has always been a magnet to draw crowds. His marvelous execution and the wonderful power he exercises over the ivories have earned for him the soubriquet of the "Wizard."

His sickness a few months ago has left no serious results. In his practice he is playing marvelous billiards. Last Saturday night he ran over 300 points in a game of 14-inch balk line, and some of his averages have been phenomenal. In Billy Catton he has a good man to practice with.

Notes.

They can't start too soon.

Dewald will be the best batting pitcher.

Dad Clark is a hard hitter and a heady pitcher.

Hurley ought to at once be popular in this city.

Gettinger, Armour and Nichol will be a very fast outfield.

Our Corbett is not the prize fighter, but he's a prize second baseman.

Jerry Hurley is a lightning thrower to the bases. He's a California boy.

Ely and Corbett will be a very foxy combination for second base play from the plate.

Campion will take the cranks by storm when they see him cover first bag. He's always in it.

Gunnells can congratulate himself on the good team he has secured. Luck seems to have turned toward Toledo for the nonce.

Dewald and Campion fell to Toledo in the distribution of Western league players. Both ought to make good records for themselves in that city, which has generally been a good base ball town for a good club.—Cleveland Leader.

MANSLAUGHTER.

Pat Elliot Got Off Better Than His Brother Did.

Columbus, O., March 18.—On account of personal journalism between William and Patrick Elliott and A. C. Osborn, Patrick killed the latter February 23, 1891. W. J. Elliott was soon after sentenced to life. To-day P. J. Elliott was convicted of manslaughter.

MADE A MESS OF IT.

More Loose Legislation At Columbus.

Ohio Villages Have No Election Law.

The Caucus of Republicans Can Not Settle the Cleveland Question —Capital Gossip.

Columbus, March 18.(Special)—In their unseemly scramble to amend the Australian ballot bill passed by the last democratic legislature, the republicans have put themselves in a very ridiculous light. A joint conference committee has been considering all the proposed amendments for some weeks.

The change which was regarded as most pressing was one to relieve from the operation of the law spring elections in townships and smaller villages, and a bill making that provision had been introduced in the house some time ago by Mr. Reeve, of Ashtabula. Spring election time was so near at hand that the committee finding they could not make up a complete report soon enough reported back Mr. Reeve's bill with a recommendation for its passage, and under suspension of the rules rushed it through the house.

It was immediately railroaded over to the senate, and hustled through there with equal celerity. Now it develops that while the bill repeals that section of the Australian ballot law relating to hamlet or village elections, it does not re-enact the old election law which was in force before the Australian law was passed.

Consequently the townships and villages of Ohio are left without any law whatever to govern their spring elections, as there is no manner now by which a clerk or judge of election could be legally selected in any township or any village under the provisions of that bill.

It is stated that a bill re-enacting the old law in operation prior to the passage of the Australian bill will be at once passed, but in case anything should happen that such a bill could not get through both branches before adjournment or before time for the spring elections, it would not be possible to hold any legal election at all in those precincts which come under the operation of the Reeve bill.

Republican Caucus.

Before the redistricting caucus met last night the sub-committee held a half hour session in which there was more or less wrangling as to what should be done with the Cuyahoga end of the problem.

Mr. Griffin was armed with a paper signed by Senators Spencer and Parker and Representatives Pudney, Porter and Dodge, and also by Representative Clapp, of Geauga county, which stated that the division of the Twentieth and Twenty-first districts as proposed by the report of the committee was unsatisfactory to them.

Mr. Doty was prepared with a counter statement signed by Senator Greene and Representatives Bloch, Clark, Haynes, Doty and Gallagher. Mr. Doty also showed the committee telegrams from Cleveland stating that the division, as proposed by the committee, was unwise from a republican standpoint, notwithstanding the alleged republican majorities. The committee then decided to report matters as they stood to the caucus and adjourned.

The caucus wrangled for two hours over the report and then adopted the report so far as the first nineteen districts are concerned, and adjourned.

Working for the People.

Mr. Winn has introduced a bill amending the law passed last April requiring railroads to give conductors, engineers, firemen and telegraph operators a rest of eight hours after 24 hours of continuous service.

It limits the number of hours consecutive service to 15 and inserts the words, "any train man."

Mr. Winn got in another bill affecting railroad employes. It prohibits the employment of any one as a locomotive engineer who has not had at least 2 years' experience as fireman. Flagmen must have had two years' experience as brakemen on freight or construction train and it makes flagmen equally responsible with conductors for the protection of trains.

Bills Introduced.

Mr. Taylor, of Champaign, introduced a bill supplementing section 4135, by requiring every assignment of real estate mortgage and of notes thereby secured to be recorded in the office of the county recorder in which the property is located, and until so recorded they shall not be a valid lien on the property mortgaged.

Mr. Boesel—Authorizing the state board of public works to pay specified damages for overflows of canals.

Mr. Welsh—Giving magistrates final jurisdiction in all civil cases in which not more than $50 is involved.

Mr. Allaman—Prohibiting the sale of liquors within one mile of the Dayton Soldiers' home.

Mr. Welsh—Fixing the compensation of jurors at magistrates' courts at $1 per day.

Mr. Haskell—Providing for a monument on Gettysburg battlefield to "Battery I, First Ohio Artillery," commanded by Capt. Dilger.

Work in the Senate.

Not as many members of the legislature went to Newak to visit the permanent encampment grounds as was expected. Enough republican members of the senate went to leave the democrats in the majority, a circumstance which they hastened to take advantage of.

Mr. Geyer presented a motion to take Mr. Rawling's county option bill from the committee, and showing a disposition to press the matter, a motion to adjourn was presented on the republican side and declared carried.

Mr. Parks introduced a bill repealing the Cleveland fire department bill which was passed yesterday, and having been signed is now a law.

Mr. Abbott presented a petition favoring the construction of a ship canal from Cleveland to the Ohio river.

Mr. Wanzer, for the committee on medical colleges and societies, introduced a bill regulating the practice of medicine and surgery. It is a counterpart of the Sterrett bill with all obnoxious features stricken out.

Notes.

S. B. by Mr. Abbott—Prohibiting the catching of salmon between September 15 and March 14.

S. B. by Mr. Rawlings—To amend the revised statutes so as to permit the dehorning of cattle.

Gov. McKinley yesterday sent the name of B. H. Milliken, Washington C. H., Fayette county, to the senate as trustee of the Girls' Industrial home.

Senate passed Carney's house bill to authorize Marion township, Hancock county, to levy a tax of five mills for road purposes if approved by a vote of the people.

Senator Rorick yesterday afternoon introduced a bill to authorize the board of education of Archibold special school district, Fulton county, to increase the levy for school purposes to two mills.

The house yesterday passed the bill introduced by Mr. Taylor, of Champaign, to increase the salary of the Ohio director of the world's fair and appropriating an additional sum of money for the Buckeye state's display and for a suitable memorial design. An effort will be made to rush the bill through the senate as quickly as possible.

The senate passed Mr. Sterritt's bill empowering the state food and dairy commissioner to enforce the laws against adulteration of food and providing suitable quarters for him in the state house and also empowering him to fix the compensation of the state chemist for analyzing specimens submitted to him by the commissioner. It is now a law.

AN OLD HERMIT,

Whose History and Career Reads Like a Romance.

Born of Rich Parents, He Leaves for America,

Settles in Oregon Township, Becomes Wealthy, and Is Now a Strange Character—A Visit By Mr. Baumbach.

There lives a man in Oregon township whose career runs like a romance. He is a hermit of the wooliest kind and his history is certainly in keeping with his appearance and surroundings.

Yesterday afternoon complaint was made at the county infirmary office of the filth and unsanitary condition of a hovel occupied by a man named Lewis Litz, in Oregon township.

Director Baumbach went out and was dumbfounded at what he beheld, and learned from the neighbors and Litz himself.

The house is located near the Homestead addition, and is a little tumble-down structure, unpainted and weather-beaten. There is no fence, but the grounds surrounding the house are literally covered with piles of old iron, old broken-down wagons, carriages and plunder of this nature. Among the trash are over a hundred bee hives, and almost as many hard wood barrels, all falling to pieces with age and warped by the rain and sun.

The exterior of the place presented a wierd and desolate appearance, but it was not to be compared with the interior of the house, which almost beggars description.

Mr. Baumbach knocked at the wicket door, and presently it was thrown open, and a human form appeared in the threshold. As the door swung on its hinges a perfect volume of smoke issued from the entrance, accompanied by a stench that came near taking the visitor off his feet.

Nothing daunted, however, Mr. Baumbach entered, on the invitation of the man in the doorway, and was blinded by the dense smoke with which the room was filled. He inquired if there was anything the matter with the flues. A dry, hacking laugh came through the smoke a short distance away.

"They say smoke hurts people's eyes, do my eyes look hurt?" followed the laugh.

Mr. Baumbach thought he was in the presence of a maniac, and began to look about for an opening to make his escape.

The man then said that he had no chimney and that the smoke from the fire escaped into the next room. The pipe from the stove led through a board partition into the other room.

Mr. Baumbaugh opened the door and stood near the opening while he interviewed the strange person.

He said his name was Lewis Litz, that he was 75 years of age. He came to Toledo 50 years ago, direct from Danzig, Prussia, where he left a grand house, surrounded by all the luxuries that wealth could procure. His parents were of royal birth, and stood first in the aristocracy of the country.

Young Litz always loved fine horses, and his highest ambition was to conduct a stock farm on a gigantic scale.

The advantages of America extended a tempting inducement, and when the boy became a man he left the parental roof and cast his fortunes in the land of promise over the sea.

He came direct to Toledo on landing and purchased 600 acres of land in what is now Oregon township. This was in 1842, when that country was wild and unimproved. With plenty of money at his command he laid out a stock farm according to his ideas long standing, and soon had the 600 acres cleared and improved. The fine stock raised on this farm is a part of the history of Oregon township.

As Litz grew older he began to manifest eccentricities which became more marked as the years rolled by. He never married, and was a woman hater. He never was sociable and would have nothing to do with his neighbors.

As time went on it was noticed that Litz was growing more slovenly in his appearance. His hair was unkempt, and his face and hands dirty. He had resolved never to shave, cut his hair or wash his body again, and Mr. Baumbach will testify as to how well he has kept that resolution.

His face is as black as a negro's and is covered with a crust of dirt, and his hair stands upright, stiff with filth.

The floor has not been swept for 40 years, and the cup from which he drinks his coffee has not been washed in that time.

He has a mania for buying old iron, and buys any old traps the people bring to him.

He sold 60 acres to the Homestead Syndicate for $200 an acre, and still owns a large tract of land in that township. What he has done with his money is not known, but it is supposed that he has it hidden about the place somewhere.

Mr. Baumbach has reported the case to the health officer.

LOST IN THE FLAMES.

Fatal Conflagration Across the Deep.

A Woman Loses Her Life by Going Back to Rescue Her Baby Sister.

London, March 18.—Four lives were lost last night in a fire at Fulham. A butcher shop, in a building also occupied as a dwelling, took fire.

The flames spread rapidly, and the inmates, suddenly aroused, attempted to escape. Two of them, shut in on all sides by the flames, were burned with the building.

Emma Weston made her escape in safety. Suddenly she remembered that her baby sister was still in the house. Thoughtless of her own life, she ran back into the burning building and tried to save the little one. The flames burned her so badly that she has since died in the hospital. The baby also perished.

A MAINE YANKEE

Was At the Bottom of the Dynamite Plot

Which Startled the World and Scared Chicago.

He Wanted to Arouse the Sleepy Public

To a Realization of the Poor Man's Wrongs.

Crawford Staples Griffin Tells a Yarn Which, If True, May Yet Place Him in An Undesirable Position.

Boston, Mass., March 18.—The man who was really responsible for the great anarchist uprising in Chicago, in which bomb throwing took such a prominent part, did not suffer on the gallows or in prison for the results of that movement. He is living in Boston to-day.

It was not generally known what a prominent part in the councils of the anarchists he took, but to-day there is no secret about it. He has confessed it in his own words. His name is Crawford Staples Griffin, he lives in a small room just back of an office at 812 Washington street, and is engaged in advocating nationalism, socialism, and kindred ideas as much of the time as he can spare. This is but three months of the year, as he has to devote the rest of the year to the work of his trade, carpentering, to earn his livelihood.

He is a Yankee, being born in the town of Stockton Springs, Me. In a crowd of a thousand men he would be the last one to be picked out for an anarchist. He looks the Yankee in every line of his rugged face, and is full of the colloquialisms of New England.

"The public believes," said he, "that the bomb was thrown as a part of a gigantic plot. As for the general supposition that it was hatched by foreigners, I have only to say that the parties to it were August Spies, Albert R. Parsons and myself."

He is built on the lines of a dray horse worker. He has big hairy fists, keen blue eyes, and a long hooked nose. His mouth is hidden by a tawny mustache. In his room are a bed, a desk, and a little oil stove. On the wall are crayon portraits of Ling, Spies, and Parsons.

"This statement is important," he continued, "to show that the plot was not of foreign origin. Parsons was born in the south, but all his ancestors for 200 years were New Englanders. I was also of New England origin, and Spies was the only one of the trio who was born on foreign soil.

"In the fall of '83 I went to Chicago with the intention of entering a law office. One Sunday afternoon I strolled down to the lake front, and for the first time heard an anarchist, as they were called. The meeting was closed with the announcement that all were invited to meet with them at their hall, No. 54 West Lake street, West Side. To my disgust I found that the papers next morning spoke of the speakers as a lot of blatant hoodlums, and this injustice interested my sympathies in their behalf. Accordingly I went to some of their meetings in the hall and got acquainted with Parsons, Fielding, and Spies. At the second meeting I said that I did not see how a few men in that dingy hall where no decent people would dare to come could hope to accomplish anything. Spies asked me if I had any plan to suggest, and I answered that I thought the best thing to do was to form ourselves into a committee to form plans for some more definite action and address the public through the newspapers.

"Spies answered that the papers would not print what we had to say, and the people would not read it if they would. He said they had to be stirred up before they would read anything but prize fights and murder cases. I resolved then and there that they should be stirred up if that was necessary. Then I told them that we had at least found a starting point. Knowing what the people would read we had got to furnish the proper reading matter. Before the civil war Jeff Davis said that it needed just the spilling of a little blood to fire the southern heart, and it seemed to me that he had at least advanced one idea that we had better keep track of.

"When I made this little speech I had formed no definite plan of action. After that we had livelier meetings and the reporters began to visit us. Mr. Spies told me that he thought that one of our regular visitors was a Pinkerton detective. He suggested secret meetings. I opposed this idea from the platform in the presence of the reporters, and said that we had the best of the situation at any event. If false reports were published the attention of the public would be drawn to our apparent wickedness and then we could explain our real position. If the papers told the truth then our arguments would be published gratis, and if they said nothing at all, then we could go ahead and work out some of our private plans under a show of willing publicity.

"At this time the paper called the Alarm begun to be published weekly, and our line of action in astounding and arousing the public became clear to me. One day I mentioned the tragic outline of it to Mr. Spies. He deemed it unwise even among ourselves to talk it over plainly. I then boldly broached the details of the plan to Parsons and told him Spies held such views. Parsons was a different man from Spies and talked it over boldly. He was eager to learn all the details. In fact he was so eager that I found it necessary to check myself a little, as he believed I had talked the whole matter over with Spies.

"You will see that it was not an easy matter for the public to get at our actual plot. The plot proposed by me and adopted in brief was this: We claimed to be a part of organized labor, with due authority to set its principles before the world. We intended by strikes, boycotts and inflammatory editorials and speeches to force on the struggle, and when the militia were called out to meet them with dynamite and fire. We taught the absolute overthrow of all civil governments, setting up midnight assassination as our principal plan of action. We quickly pushed this plan with such vigor that the public began to fear the outbreak at any moment. Of course we were in great danger of being lynched.

"The plan worked to perfection. Every labor leader of any consequence all over the country was interviewed to know if we really represented his views. In order for the country to feel safe it had to know the plans and purposes of organized labor, and they could not rest till they found out what the million laboring men who were secretly organized meant to do. It was thus that we forced the press to seek out and publish these purposes, and put the country in a mood to read it.

"This was the sum and substance of the whole plot, and the details were worked in from day to day. The participants in the rank and file were wholly ignorant of the meaning of any movement they ever made or of the connection of one demonstration with another.

"We were well aware that any violence committed anywhere in the country might be charged to us. It was very clear that we were staking our lives, but the really desperate feature was that we were staking the lives of so many others, and this fact no doubt led us to say so little even to each other about the real issue.

"It is doubtful if anyone but Spies, Parsons, and myself knew of the existence of the plot and I doubt if even to the day on the gallows Parsons could have told what the real plot was.

"Two or three of the schemes to convince the public that organized labor was preparing for a desperate onslaught were as follows: In the Alarm was published a full account of how to make dynamite, gun cotton caps, and bombs, with a continual run of fiery editorials. At all our meetings our speeches were equally fiery. It was only necessary to set the example and aspirants, not willing to be outdone, would do themselves proud with violent utterances.

"On one occasion a man came to one of our meetings from the Hocking Valley to ask for aid. He described the terrible suffering of the miners' families locked out of their homes and starving. In reply I said: 'This man wants us to give them some money so that they can continue in their present condition, while the owners of the mines grow fat and rich and laugh at their misery. No. If you want money to buy dynamite to blow their brains out, or blow up their property, you have come to sympathetic quarters.'

"The papers published the gist of this speech and the sentiment of it was in the Hocking Valley within 24 hours. In a few days the country was startled by a series of dynamite explosions in that valley which destroyed about a million dollars' worth of property for the company. This may have been wholly a coincidence, and the explosions planned months before, but it tended greatly to convince the country that organized labor was really as dangerous and desperate as we said it was, and we knew whereof we spoke.

"The black flag demonstration on Thanksgiving day, '84, really capped the climax. The red flag means the same as the red in all flags, all of one blood. The black flag means mourning and death, but to the onlookers we tried to make the red a bloody onslaught and the black piracy. For this occasion I prepared a set of resolutions that were unusually vicious. They were so vicious that Spies objected to their being read, but I persisted. These were reported in full, and were put in as evidence at the trial of the anarchists

"You can judge of the character of my remarks at this meeting by this extract which I saved from the published report: 'Do you see these five and eight-story buildings all about you full of food and clothing they cannot sell because we cannot earn the money to buy it? Do you see the "to lets" in nearly every window because we cannot get the wages to hire? If we are men we will unite, arm, and take these things by force of arms, and dynamite all opposition.'

"You can be sure I left them pretty well warmed up. Parsons took the stand next and told them it was the system and not individuals to blame for this condition. In this way he cooled them down and then introduced Fielden, who entered into an explanation of a favorite plan for solving the problem. But the reporters reported my resolutions and speech and said not a word about Parsons and Fielden, leaving the public to understand that we all talked alike.

"To say that Chicago and the whole country were stirred up when they read the papers the next morning would be to put it mildly. There were open threats of lynching, and several policemen personally threatened me, but I held my peace. I felt that we had reached the climax of our desires. We at last had the ear of the public, and could unfold our real plans. It was now time to begin to reason. But Spies had gone farther than I. It was here that we began to drift apart. I believed the subject should be kept reasonably warm, but he was thoroughly wedded to the 'red-hot' method. A few weeks after this I went to Kansas lecturing, and then took a run home to Maine to quiet the fears of my parents, and especially my mother, who believed that I was being led astray by a lot of unprincipled ruffians.

"I was at home on the 4th of May when the bomb was thrown. The state's attorney opened the trial of the men who were arraigned for the bomb throwing by saying that they were no more guilty than thousands of others, but he said he wanted the jury to convict them as an example to the rest, to the end that they might all 'be driven into their holes like rats.'

"By reading to the jury my 'black flag' resolutions and various extracts from my speeches, and by proving that Parsons was editor of the Alarm, and that Fielden had made inflammatory remarks, coupled with Ling's bomb-making, he wove all the prisoners together as bomb-makers and instigators against human life.

"These men suffer because the state's attorney selected them to suffer. He could just as well have selected any one of 500 others to take their places in the dock. There wasn't the least particle of evidence that the bomb was thrown as a part of any conspiracy.

"The anarchist 'plot' was originated solely by me to induce the press to publish and the masses to read our case.

"Punishing the few for the sins of the many is martyrdom, and the Chicago anarchists have been and three of them still are being martyred for the many.

"This is 10 years before I wanted to speak and publish these facts, but there seems no way to get these men out of prison until the public knows the real cause of their being there."

Mr. Griffin intends to keep at work now till he gets these men released. He is in entire earnestness about it, and says he will devote the rest of his life to the work. He feels himself to blame for the outcome. He lighted a blaze which he thought he could control, but it got away from him, and others suffered the penalty.

Rather risky—the offer that's made by the proprietors of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. Risky for them. For you, if you have Catarrh, it's a certainty. You're certain to be cured of it, or to be paid $500. That's what they offer, and in good faith—they cure you, or pay you, no matter how bad your case, or of how long standing.

But—is it so much of a risk? They have a medicine that cures Catarrh, not for a time, but for all time. They've watched it for years, curing the most hopeless cases. They know that in your case there's every chance of success, almost no chance of failure.

Wouldn't any one take such a risk with such a medicine?

The only question is—are you willing to make the test, if the makers are willing to take the risk?

If so, the rest is easy. You pay your druggist fifty cents and the trial begins.

Can you ask more?

MAY GO INTO COURT.

Reciprocity Clause May Be Tested.

The Venezuelan Proclamation Opens the Way for Another Trial of the McKinley Bill.

Washington, March 18.—The Evening Star has this: It is possible that the president's proclamation reimposing duties on certain imports from Venezuela, Hayti and Columbia will lead again to a test of the validity of the reciprocity clause in the McKinley bill.

The proclamation opens the way for the direct question to be brought before the court.

Speaking of the proclamation Representative Turner of Georgia, the lawyer member of the ways and means committee, said: "The restoration of the duties on coffee and other commodities from Venezuela, Hayti and Columbia will greatly disturb our trade with these countries and will operate a great hardship upon Americans engaged in that trade.

The question of the constitutionality of the law under which the proclamation is issued may be tested in the courts.

"The question presented would be very different from that recently decided by the supreme court. The claim set up in this recent case was that the whole bill was rendered invalid by the presence of this clause in the bill, but the validity of the clause itself was not tested.

"Now any one importing coffee from Venezuela and being required to pay duty on import may contest the validity of this levy of duty imposed merely by an executive proclamation and not applicable to similar imports from other countries. He may take the matter into the courts and carry it to the supreme court and get a decision upon the direct question of the right of congress to delegate a law-making power to the president."

CAR ON FIRE.

Much Valuable Property Destroyed on the Wabash.

St. Louis, March 18.—The United States express car on the Wabash, filled with express for St. Louis, caught fire yesterday from a stove when near Honey Bend, Ill. The car was a total loss, as was also a great amount of express matter. In the safe was $50,000 in ones, twos and fives, currency, consigned from Washington to the sub-treasury in this city.

The safe was heated red hot and the currency was charred, some of it beyond recognition—all so much so as to be of no value. The federal authorities think the express company will not lose the entire amount.

TRUST FIGHTERS.

Washington, March 18.—"It is very likely," said Attorney General Miller, talking to a gentleman who had asked him if it were true that the department of justice was so hot after the Chicago beef combine that the managers had found it necessary to burn their books.

"We are endeavoring to execute the anti-trust law, and wherever a concern is found which offers a fair field for investigation, one is pursued to the best of our ability."

FIRE IN THE COTTON.

PEOPLE'S PARTY.

Omaha, Neb., March 18.—The state convention of the people's independent party will be held at Kearney August 3. The convention to select delegates to the national convention meets in Lincoln June 30.

As bearing upon the subject of the necessity of using trolley wires in order to get the advantages to be derived from electric railways, the Public Ledger has been furnished with information from a reliable source concerning the electric railway in Washington, which uses storage battery cars on the city streets and the trolley wire system in the suburbs. The trolley wire system is of the best and considered a model plant. The company made a contract with an accumulator company in this city, whereby the latter was to furnish and operate storage battery cars on the city streets. As a basis for getting at the price to be paid for the service, a statement was made of the cost of running the trolley system per car mile, and the storage battery company agreed to run six cars at a fraction less per car mile than the ascertained cost of running the six cars on the trolley system. It has been doing this at a profit, according to the statement of an officer of the company, and also at a less cost per car mile than the published statement on the Boston trolley road, although the latter runs some hundreds of cars and ought to be economical. It is impossible to get exact statements as to cost, these being trade secrets, but it ought to be ascertainable whether storage battery cars are run in Washington under contract at less cost than cars using the trolley system. No real attempt has ever been made by the railway companies of this city to experiment with storage battery cars. The experiments that have been made were undertaken in a small way by the storage batteries companies themselves and are not conclusive, for the storage batteries have been as much improved as the trolley system since they were undertaken. It is not too much to ask of the railway companies that they shall themselves test this or other systems before covering the streets with a network of wires.

BEST OF ALL

To cleanse the system in a gentle and truly beneficial manner, when the springtime comes, use the true and perfect remedy, Syrup of Figs. One bottle will answer for all the family, and costs only 50 cents; the large size $1. Try it and be pleased. Manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only.

There is nothing like plenty of fruit for the complexion. That is, fruit in season. Forced strawberries and hothouse peaches are absolutely lacking in qualities that make them wholesome and beneficial when grown under proper and natural conditions. Sun ripened strawberries are a sure cure for some liver troubles and are beneficial to those suffering from rheumatism. Cherries are excellent for people who are low spirited, and peaches are good for almost every kind of stomach trouble. Of course all these affections act disastrously on the complexion and their removal improves it. But for a pure and unadulterated beautifier there is nothing like the orange. The more oranges you eat the lovelier you will be. They are simply magical. There is a tale of some famous beauty of Louis Philippe's time who almost lived on them for 40 years. She certainly deserved either immortal beauty or a lunatic asylum. Somebody's mind inclines in the direction of the latter.

CATARRH OF THE STOMACH

HOW THE DISEASE IS OFTEN MISUNDERSTOOD.

Dyspepsia a Name That Is Made to Cover Multitude of Sins—Statements that Explain Fully What Is Being Done by Dr. Copeland and Associates.

Dyspepsia, a name given to nearly all stomach and bowel troubles by old-time physicians, is really nothing more nor less than a catarrhal condition of these parts. Dyspepsia means bad digestion, nothing else, and, like charity, often covers a multitude of sins on the part of a physician, who, ignorant of a patient's true condition, calls it dyspepsia, and thus the patient is satisfied.

Physiology teaches that the numerous glands of the stomach throw out during the 24 hours 14 pints of gastric juice, almost two gallons, with which to digest the food we eat. In chronic catarrh of the stomach, the mucous lining of which is continuous with that of the nose and throat, the secreting glands become diseased and do not fulfill their proper functions, hence the food lies heavy in the stomach and ferments instead of being digested. Foul gases arise therefrom, which distend the stomach, causing weight, tightness, flatulence, bloating and discomfort. The heart and lungs are encroached upon by the diaphragm, which impedes their natural action, hence we have fluttering or palpitation, and, in consequence of disturbed circulation and respiration, coldness of extremities, depression of spirits (nervousness), feeble pulse, dizziness, shortness of breath, hot and cold flashes, etc., etc.

To the physician who understands his anatomy and physiology and correctly applies his pathology these symptoms are as easily read as his A B C's.

Mr. Rice's Case.

It is rarely that the specialist, whose observation covers a wide range of throat and lung troubles and whose experience brings him in contact with many of the serious and desperate cases resulting from neglected catarrh, sees a more pronounced case and one more typical of what head and throat trouble, if neglected or not properly treated, may develop into, than the case of Mr. Ancil G. Rice, of 219 Dix street. As near as possible we give his own words:

"My trouble has all been due to chronic catarrh," says Mr. Rice, "and it was not neglected, either, for I have doctored for years, but been improperly treated. I had occasional violent headaches. My eyes were weak and watery and my nose was continually stopped up. I was forced to breathe through my mouth.

"My throat was always filling up with the dropping of the mucus from the head. I was hawking and spitting all the time. My throat was at times very sore and raw. My rest was poor at night and I was really unfit for business in the morning.

"As I said, I tried many prominent physicians, but experienced very little relief. I had heard and read of the success of Dr. Copeland and associates, and concluded to give them a trial. I did so with the result that my pains, aches and other troubles are all gone. The change in my condition is such that I unhesitatingly recommend Dr. Copeland and associates to all who suffer as I did."

Nasal Polypi Described by a Patient.

"I had been troubled for a number of years," said Mr. George Hoffman, of 107 Empire street. "My head and nose was completely stopped up and I had to breathe through my mouth. This was due, in a measure, to the accumulation of mucus, but more especially to a number of polypi tumors which filled both nostrils. I had treated with a number of physicians but none of them discovered the tumors. Some time ago I called on Dr. Copeland and associates, and placed myself under their treatment. They immediately removed seven polypi tumors and I was able to breathe through my nostrils, something I had not done in years. They then treated my catarrh, and I am happy to say I am feeling better to-day than I have for years. The removal of the tumors was without the slightest pain or loss of blood. I cannot recommend Dr. Copeland and associates too highly."

Results In a Case Treated by Mail.

Portage, O., Feb. 9, 1892.
Copeland Medical Institute, Toledo, O.:
Gentlemen:—Since taking your treatment for catarrh, I am very much better. My general health is much improved, my sense of smell has returned. My case was a chronic one and will require time. I am greatly encouraged and anticipate a complete cure. Refer anyone to me.
Yours respectfully,
N. C. BESANSON.

A Prominent Real Estate Agent Tells of the Removal of Twenty Polypi Tumors.

Among the many prominent real estate agents in Toledo, none are more popular or more favorably known than Mr. J. J. Sumner, whose offices are at the corner of Superior and Madison streets, and who lives at 721 Prouty avenue. Mr. Sumner tells of his experience with Dr. Copeland and associates as follows:

"I had catarrh for a long time. My nose stopped up so that I could breathe only with great difficulty. In damp weather I could not breathe at all. I suffered from terrible, racking headaches. I often thought my head would burst with the throbbing and the pain. There was a constant flow of mucus from my nose, and my eyes became sore and watery. I did not sleep well, and I found that I was losing my sense of smell. I was most distressed, however, about my voice, which changed in tone until it sounded as if I pinched my nose with my fingers while talking.

"I was quite in despair, when after reading the testimonials of the patients of Dr. Copeland and associates I determined to make a trial of their treatment. I accordingly went to the Copeland Medical Institute, and it was only a short time until I began to breathe through my nose, until the headaches disappeared and until the polypus growths were removed. I can now hear the natural voice that has returned to me, much to my comfort and delight. I sleep well and I feel well. I have only one fear, and that is that the polypi may return, so I have concluded to continue the treatment for another month, at the end of which time I shall be forever rid, I hope, of the complaint that for four years made life a burden to me. I am glad to add my small tribute of praise to the splendid work of these physicians."

It would seem that the people of Minnesota had very good reason to believe that the whole northern portion of their State is marked by an abundance of valuable iron ore. Even before the important discoveries of the Vermillion and Mesaba ranges had confirmed the opinion that they were no mere pockets or isolated deposits of ore, practical miners had predicted that rich mineral ores would be found from Duluth on the east to the borders of the Red River Valley on the west. It is only recently, however, that systematic examination of this whole territory has been undertaken, but the results already are most satisfactory. Success has been had every where. To the hard, magnetic ore, hitherto the product of the region, there has been added the discovery of red hematite. Aside from this immediate mineral wealth, these mines will prove an important acquisition for Minnesota. They will lead to the opening up of the whole northern section of that State, a region not only rich in natural resources but important in commercial location. The East congratulates Minnesota.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY

Celebrations Throughout the City Last Evening.

The Parade Yesterday—At Wheeler's, Memorial, Eversman and Weber Halls—It Was a Gala Day.

Throughout the city last evening entertainments were given in honor of St. Patrick in numerous places, and it is safe to say that the festival of Ireland's saint was more universally observed in Toledo yesterday than ever before.

The procession in the afternoon was the largest and finest of the kind ever seen in Toledo. The showing made by the Polish societies was a surprise. Their discipline, too, was another surprise. They outnumbered any of the Irish societies in line.

The French societies also made a creditable showing. The Young Men's Catholic Benevolent association did not turn out in as large numbers as anticipated. The A. O. H., as usual, was in line with a creditable contingent. The streets along the line of march were crowded with people, the great majority of whom wore a bit o' green. Great credit is due Grand Marshal P. H. Sugrue and his aides for the manner in which the parade was carried out.

On the East Side.

At Weber's hall, East Toledo, the people of the Good Shepherd church celebrated St. Patrick's day with a supper followed by a musical entertainment. The hall was crowded, and the good things provided by the ladies of the parish fairly made the tables groan. Mesdames Gill, Rodgers, Carroll and Keogh, assisted by a number of young ladies, had charge of the arrangements and gave entire and general satisfaction. After supper an excellent musical program was rendered.

Miss Kate McGrath sang "Good-by to Erin," and was deservedly encored. Rev. Father Graham, of Antwerp, then delivered an interesting and eloquent address on "The Day We Celebrate." The reverend gentleman spoke of St. Patrick's great and holy works among the Irish people. "Eileen Alanna" was sung charmingly by Miss Anna Petit and the duet, "Good Night," by Misses Petit and McGrath, closed the program.

Glimpses of the Orient.

Rev. Dr. Quigley was greeted with another large audience at Wheeler's last evening when he delivered his second lecture on Glimpses of the Orient. The lecture was for the benefit of St. Vincent's orphanage and will probably net that institution $700.

Judge Harmon acted in the capacity of chairman, and took occasion in introducing Dr. Quigley to speak of the day and the duties and obligations the holiday entailed.

The reverend lecturer delivered an interesting address. He spoke eloquently of Ireland's past history in closing his lecture. He dwelt at length in the sorrows and glories of Erin and closed by a quotation from Moore's "Let Erin Remember."

The large audience was more than pleased with the two hours' entertainment and instruction given by Dr. Quigley and testified its appreciation by generous applause.

The Athletic Club's Entertainment.

Memorial hall was crowded last evening to witness the entertainment given by St. Patrick's Athletic and Dramatic society. T. J. McDonnell delivered an address appropriate to the occasion. Miss Francis Weick sang in a charming manner. A duet by W. A. Cramer and Miss Maud Fuller, on picolo and banjo, was very enjoyable. Miss Cynthia Rogers, who is making quite a reputation for herself, sang My Mollie O, in a clever manner. Later in the evening she appeared in character songs. Chas. O'Brien and Malcolm Russell did some very funny specialty. Mr. O'Brien is one of the best comedians in Northern Ohio and Mr. Russell is fast coming to the front as an original fun maker. J. B. Poulin sang a solo in his usual good style. Prof. Frank L. Newburg was there with his guitar and that meant an enjoyable number. Miss Agnes Early gave a recitation in an easy finished manner. Miss Ella Conlisk sang in a charming manner. One of the best numbers of the program was that of Little Sadie Wertheim, who handles the violin in a masterly manner. Her playing is wonderful and her fame is bound to spread beyond Toledo. She has already had offers of concert engagements, but has refused them and will soon go east to study. Miss Nellie Brady and J. B. Poulin sang a pleasing duet. W. A. Cramer, who is an all round musician, gave a selection on the Xylophone. Miss Weick sang The Gondola, with flute obligato by Mr. Poulin. Another very enjoyable number was the guitar and mandolin duet by Prof. Newburg and Miss Ada Rogers. W. A. Cramer played the musical bottles, the orchestra played "good night," and the entertainment which was most enjoyable was over.

At Eversman's Hall.

The members of the Immaculate Conception Dramatic club gave the second presentation of Eileen Oge at Eversman's hall last evening. The performance went off smoothly, and the participants, every one of them, won for themselves no end of praise for their excellent work. The hall was crowded with an appreciative audience.

Meeting To-morrow Night of the Resident Members.

Gen. W. H. Raynor, president of the local body of the military order of the loyal legion of the United States, has called a meeting of the resident members at Memorial hall, in the directors' room, for to-morrow evening, at 8 o'clock sharp, for the purpose of expressing preferences for officers to be elected at the commandery election to be held in Cincinnati, May 9, and for the transaction of such other business as may come before the meeting. A full attendance is requested.

NO COMMITTEE HERE

To Take Charge of Donations for the Russians.

Postmaster David Garn, of Helena, O., has in his care a quantity of corn purchased by the school children of that place, for the destitute Russians. He writes to Toledo asking if a relief committee has as yet been appointed here that would take care of the corn if sent. Its free shipment has been assured to Toledo. However there is no such committee here at present. Toledo is an important grain center and such a committee would find, if formed, that there would be plenty in this territory to donate for the relief of the Russian peasants.

NEXT TUESDAY'S CONCERT.

The Ladies Who Are Patronesses for the Glee Club.

The following prominent society ladies are patronesses for the U. of M. Glee and Banjo clubs, which appear at Wheeler's Tuesday evening: Mrs. F. B. Dodge, Mrs. J. M. Ferris, Mrs. J. M. Ashley, Mrs. A. M. C. Barnes, Mrs. P. B. Franklin, Miss A. C. Mott, Mrs. A. L. Spitzer, Mrs. W. H. Standart, Mrs. Lawrence Newman, Mrs. J. B. Ketcham 2d, Mrs. Robinson Locke, Mrs. Rathbun Fuller. The club will have a special train and will return to Ann Arbor after the reception given for them by Mrs. F. B. Dodge.

CAUGHT AT LAST.

John W. Wood, of Findlay, Arrested for Personating an Officer.

Yesterday United States Deputy Marshal Matimer went to Findlay and arrested John W. Wood, of that place, on the charge of impersonating an officer of the internal revenue service. Wood was brought to Toledo and locked up until to-morrow afternoon, when he will hav a hearing.

For two years some one has been mulcting the saloon keepers of this district by impersonating a revenue collector, and Collector Waldorf believes Wood is the man. He tackled Campbell & Henry, of Cygnet, and tried to bluff that firm, but without success. He is a shrewd fellow and knows enough about custom house and internal revenue laws to enable him to make a clever bogus officer.

TURKEY FOOT ROCK LODGE

Instituted at Maumee in Good Style by Elmer Dale.

Yesterday was a lively day for staid old Maumee. The town was almost captured by the Knights of Pythias from Toledo and surrounding territory. Mr. Elmer Dale, as instituting officer, completed the work of conferring the ranks on 24 candidates, and last evening a public installation was held in the town hall. Mr. Dale was assisted by Messrs. G. D. O'Neill and G. C. Weir, and the business went off smoothly. Following the installation, remarks were made by Mr. Dale, Mr. Beatty and Col. Austin. Toledo and Custer divisions turned out in goodly numbers and made a creditable display. The Toledo visitors returned last evening. Prospects for the new lodge are very bright, and there is no doubt of a substantial growth. Turkey Foot Rock was the name chosen.

THE GAS COMMITTEE

Will Meet To-Night to Pass on Their Report.

The mayor's natural gas investigating committee will hold a meeting this evening, which will be strictly a star chamber session. Said one of the committee this morning: "We wish to formulate our report in privacy. All the doings of the committee have heretofore been public. Now we wish to talk it over quietly among ourselves. Of course we can only make suggestions, but that in itself will be hard enough in view of the present condition of affairs. We might advise that $100,000 more be expended, but where is the money to come from? Would it be forthcoming? is the question that will stagger us."

The committee's report will probably be ready to present to the gas trustees Monday evening. It is probable that it will advise that more bonds be issued to improve and carry on the work.

READY TO SKIP.

Benj. Miville a Saloonkeeper, Caught On the Fly.

Deputy Revenue Collector Coy, a few days since, discovered a whisky and two beer kegs on the premises of Benj. Miville, 1980 Ontario street, with the revenue stamp undefaced. He got out a warrant for Miville's arrest and when Deputy Marchal Hackett went to the saloon this morning he found Miville in the act of skipping out. He had his trunks on a wagon and in five minutes would have been gone.

He was arrested, and upon appearing before U. S. Commissioner Beckham was bound over in $300 to the United States court. In default of the necessary bond he was sent to jail.

Miville claims he does not own the saloon but was simply acting as barkeeper for a man named Farmer, who had a month ago, he claims, skipped out and went to Canada. It is believed, however, that Miville owns the place.

CALL ISSUED

To Complete the Organization of the Lake Yachting Association.

Commodore Geo. W. Bills has issued the following call for a meeting to complete the organization of the yachting association:

Toledo, O., March 8, 1892.

Delegates chosen to represent your club at the meeting of the proposed Lake and Straits Yachting association, will please take notice that a meeting is hereby called for Monday, March 21, 1892, at the Iroquois house, Buffalo, N. Y., at 10:30 sharp, for the final completion of the organization.

The chairman of each delegation should notify Commodore F. B. Hower, Buffalo, N. Y., the number of his club who will attend, so that quarters may be secured for all.

Hoping that there will be a full attendance and that all clubs will be fairly represented, as it is a matter of great importance to all true yachtsmen and promoters of the grandest of all aquatic pleasures that the Lake and Straits Yachting association should be organized on a basis, at once fair, just and equal to all. I remain, Yours respectfully,

GEO. W. BILLS.

Mr. Bills, who will leave Sunday morning for Buffalo, joining the Cleveland delegation enroute, has been twice commodore of the Ohio Yacht club, and the most efficient and capable officer that organization has ever had. He is an A 1 yachtsman, and it is hoped he will bring back to Toledo some of the honors that will be distributed at the coming meeting.

SOCIAL PURITY CONFERENCE

To be Held Next Week—The Program Arranged.

Next Tuesday and Wednesday a Social Purity conference will be held at St. Paul's M. E. church, the meetings to be in charge of Rev. Jeannette L. Olmstead, state superintendent of the Social Purity department of the Ohio W. C. T. U. The discussions will all be under the head of Social Purity.

Tuesday evening some of the local clergy will talk and Rev. Jeannette Olmstead will speak on the "Ideal in Social Life."

The program for the day session, which will be held Wednesday, will be as follows:

Opening, 10 a. m.—Devotional exercises, Mrs. E. C. Olmstead, Holland, O.; Tobacco an Immoral Force, Mrs. Edwards; singing; Purity in Literature and Art, Mrs. Phoebe Clark.

Devotional exercises, 2 p. m., Mrs. J. W. Hiett; Equal Suffrage, Mrs. E. S. Fray; Juvenile Work, Mrs. S. E. G. Kieth; Mothers' Meetings, Miss J. L. Olmstead; Bible Reading, Mrs. Bartlett; Travelers' Aids, Mrs. Lutz; question box.

On Wednesday evening Mrs. Clara Hoffman, president of the Missouri W. C. T. U., will deliver an address on "Our Legacy to the Future." Mrs. Hoffman is a wide awake, brainy woman, and a forcible, entertaining speaker. Everyone will enjoy her address whether interested in social purity work or not. Gentlemen as well as ladies are cordially invited.

The music will be in charge of Mrs. Farrar. There will be delegates present from the various women's societies of the county, and much valuable information will be imparted. It is hoped these meetings will be largely attended.

TROUBLE AMONG THE WHEELMEN.

Toledo Is Out of the State League and Can Laugh at the Row.

Ever since the Toledo Cycling club withdrew from the state league there has been trouble among the knights of the wheel. Under the caption of "Small Potatoes—Very," the Cleveland Leader scores the chairman of the racing committee:

Probably one of the smallest actions ever attempted in the Ohio division, L. A. W., is that of the chairman of the division racing committee, who resides at Cincinnati. His name is Arnold Wilhelmy.

As is well known, the next state meet is announced for Dayton on the 4th of July, and as has already been stated in the Leader, the selfish Cincinnati wheelmen have arranged a 4th of July tournament, which they are determined to hold in spite of the state meet at Dayton. That is a privilege, of course, that cannot be denied them, and if that were all they were desirous of bringing about it would be out of place to criticise them, though proper, perhaps, to ridicule their efforts to down the state meet. Not satisfied with holding a local tournament and influencing as many Cincinnati wheelmen as possible to be absent from Dayton, Chairman Wilhelmy has lent his aid to a most contemptible effort to belittle the state meet, something that never was attempted in Ohio or any other state.

He has announced, so it is stated in Dayton, that he has given the state racing championships to the Cincinnati tournament instead of the Dayton meet. Upon what meat doth this, our Caesar, feed that he appears so pompous? By what authority does he shift championship races about the state? It has always been quite generally believed that races for the state championship were a part of the division meet when the city at which the members assembled desired to give a racing meeting in connection with the social assemblage. If it is proper to separate the championship races and the annual meet, why not adopt a program after the following style:

"To Ohio Wheelmen, Notice.

"The following are the assignments for state championship races:

"Five mile championship, Toledo.
"Four mile championship, Cleveland.
"Three mile championship, Steubenville.
"Two mile championship, Cincinnati.
"One mile championship, Columbus.
"Half mile championship, Dayton.
"Quarter mile championship, Youngstown.

"All other championships at different localities subject to the whims, caprice, and petty spite of the racing chairman."

The above program would be strictly in accordance with the evidences of malignancy shown at Cincinnati. There is another feature, however, to the taking away of the championship races from Dayton that seems not to have been grasped by the Cincinnati marplots. Suppose that Dayton goes ahead and gives championship races as well as Cincinnati. Is it not a fact that a contest will come before the national racing board, with the chances all in favor of the Dayton championships being accepted as opposed to those raced for at Cincinnati. It would be well for some people to bear that fact in mind.

That does not alter, however, the general opinion of contempt that will be entertained by those who have watched the systematic efforts being made in Cincinnati to make the state meet a failure. It is a matter in which Dayton is no longer alone concerned, for it is now Cincinnati against the entire Ohio division L. A. W. It was a sad day for humanity in Cincinnati when it became a great hog center. It is impossible for persons not to be influenced somewhat by their surroundings.

FAMILY DIFFICULTY.

Suit for Alimony and Custody of Child Filed.

In common pleas court Rosa A. Fridley sued Wm. H. Fridley to recover alimony and gain the custody of their child. She asks that he may be enjoined from disposing of any property in his possession, also that the Toledo Savings Bank and Trust company be enjoined from paying out money deposited to the credit of the defendant.

THE HOTEL INDUSTRY.

The Institution Will Probably Go Out of Existence.

The statement in the Bee yesterday relative to the Hotel Industry caused a good deal of comment among those interested.

It appears now that the institution will be allowed to die, not because it has not been a success, but for the reason that the management cannot find quarters as suitable.

The lady managers had been given to understand by Mr. Shoemaker that they could have the building as long as he lived. Now that the five-year lease is about to expire the ladies discover that Mr Shoemaker proposes rebuilding and the hotel must be removed.

The institution has done a great deal of good, and it will be a source of sorrow to many if the good work of providing pleasant and cheap homes for so many young women is thus suddenly suspended.

ADAM GRAUFF'S FUNERAL

Held This Afternoon—Services at the Masonic Temple.

The funeral of Adam J. Grauff occurred this afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Masonic temple. The remains of Mr. Grauff were taken to the temple this morning at 11 o'clock, Sir Knights Merwin Jackson, Ed Symonds, Chris Feilbach, John B. Smart and Charles Hunbard being the escorts. The body lay in state there until 2 o'clock this afternoon, when the commandery assembled and the full Knight Templar service was held. The remains were then taken to Forest cemetery, where they were interred, an escort from the commandery accompanying the funeral. The active pall-bearers were Sir Knights John Daiber, Wm. Wachter, Jacob Mandler, Max Rothfuss, Adam Schivere and L. J. Seek.

The honorary pall-bearers were Messrs. I. C. Shaw, L. K. Parks, T. R. Cook, members of the water works board, Superintendent H. C. Cotter, G. E. Wilson and Fred Puck. There was a large attendance. The water works department was closed and all the employes attended.

ENTERTAINMENTS.

New Version of Cleopatra by R. D. McLean and Marie Prescott.

McLean and Prescott will present a dramatization of Rider Haggard's Cleopatra at the opera house this evening. This will be repeated at the matinee tomorrow afternoon, and to-morrow evening they will present Spartacus.

An enthusiastic New York correspondent of the New Orleans Picayune writes as follows of Mr. McLean:

"The friends in New Orleans of Mr. R. D. MacLean will be gratified to hear of his success during his present engagement at the Union Square theater, New York city. As Spartacus he has proven a worthy successor to such illustrious men as Forrest and McCullough. No one who has seen Mr. MacLean on the stage will fail to appreciate how his magnificent physique and powerful resonant voice, together with such dramatic ability as few men possess, would win new laurels as a gladiator. In this role, which is one of the most difficult in his repertoire, with none but savage instincts; rather one of nature's noblemen, goaded by the bloodthirsty Romans, stung by the lash of a master, who has little claim to the name of human, slavery of wife and child, the once happy home fired by his captors; every torture applied to him. Not until the promise of liberty for his loved ones rekindles a hope for happiness does he draw his sword for gladiator's blood. In the arena scene the audience were enthusiastic. Later on, when Spartacus, ruined by his brother's desertion, prepares to march upon the enemy with a handful of faithful soldiers, the parting with his wife and boy is most pathetic. Mr. MacLean gives us a glimpse of the exquisite agony of a heart torn by conflicting hope, fear and determination to conquer. The contrast to the unyielding general presents an opportunity to judge of a genius far above the actor of our day. Few men are as hard, earnest workers in the profession as Mr. MacLean, and, coupled with personal magnetism and ability, his success will not surprise those who have watched his career from the beginning."

George Kennan, the American lecturer and traveler, declares that he will never cease agitating until the political prisons of Siberia are things of the past. He is a tall, powerful built man, with a sweet resonant voice and eloquent manners.

Mr. Griffin and his legislature are grinding out some very bad laws.

Reciprocity which involves retaliation is not the large scheme it sounds like; it is meddling and mean and small.

There's something the matter; Mr. Hill's southern tour is either too early or too late. It doesn't aawken the northern echoes according to design.

Republican organs are expressing surprise that Southerners should vote that the Hartford and Kearsage be preserved as relics of the navy. Small minds can never understand breadth in their fellows.

A Toledo organ reminded its readers last night that the republicans saved them $55,000,000 a year extra tax by taking the tariff off sugar. Why didn't they do this twenty years ago? And if to remove the tariff from one article reduces its price to the consumer, why don't they untax some other articles of everyday use?—and pay bounty money, on the sugar plan?

President Harrison lifted a big debt yesterday when he pushed the disgraced Judge Woods onto a seat on the Supreme bench of the United States. It had to be done before the opening of the coming campaign. There are scarcely places enough to meet the presidential obligations, and Mr. Harrison wants to clear the docket before he starts in again.

The steamship Missouri, laden with over five millions pounds of flour and corn, from the granaries of the northwest, is her third day out for the port of Libau, Russia. W. C. Edgar, of the Northwestern Miller, is a passenger to see to the distribution of the food. "God speed" say we all. And before this gift is given to the starving, the despot who rules the unhappy land will have expended its value in some military manœuver.

The democratic papers in Chicago have completely turned against Mr. Cleveland. On the part of the Herald this is surprising, as Cleveland has been its ideal leader during and since his incumbency of the Executive office. All this may be a part of the scheme to defeat Cleveland's nomination at Chicago for the leading papers, well directed, can mould much opinion during the convention days. It is fast getting to be Cleveland against the field in this contest.

The iron industry has been stimulated by government aid to the point of overproduction; four large mills closed down in Pittsburg this week and others will follow the example, to remain closed until prices advance. Thousands of workmen are thrown out of employment. And this is how the high tariff tax benefits the laborer: his wages were first scaled down because overproduction had cheapened the product, now he is turned out altogether. The employers can enjoy the idle season by coaching tours of the old world or yachting expeditions into summer waters, and if it were not that man must eat or die, the workingmen could spend their leisure reading the pamphlets that are scattered over the country, addressed to them on the subject—"the tariff a protection to the wage-earner." Can object lessons like these, put daily before men's eyes, fail to awaken the conscience and judgment of voters?

The Bee appeals to every democrat in Toledo to do his duty to-morrow, by attending the ward caucuses. The ward tickets will be nominated by the primary system, the polls being open for that purpose between the hours of four and eight p. m. Delegates to the city convention will also to be selected at the primaries. The responsibility of citizenship was never before so apparent in Toledo as this spring. The debt of the city is alarming and the recklessness of the past year is without parallel in the history of Toledo. Heroic measures must be resorted to this year. Extravagance must be checked. States must be broken and schemes thwarted. Therefore, fellow democrats, attend the caucuses and look well to the candidates for the council. Vote for men you know will serve the people faithfully. Nominate good tickets and success will surely follow at the polls in April. Attend the primaries on Saturday.

"I AM THE GOVERNMENT."

No genuine lover of the freedom which a republic guarantees to the individual read the recent remark of the young Emperor of Germany, "I am the government," without feelings of revolt and disgust. The blood which courses the human system in this age and generation is not so sluggish as to subscribe to such sentiments, and few potentates on earth dare assume such a kingly position.

Yet this is a setiment which, in a so-called strong or centralized government, gradually overshadows the people, while the right of speech, representation and administration drifts away from the sovereign multitude so gradually as to be scarcely noticeable in the excitement of personal business affairs.

When the constitution of the United States created these co-ordinate branches of government: the execution, legislative and judicial, it was intended for all time to restrict each to the functions prescribed by the charter of our rights and liberty. For more than one hundred years (except when the bastard electoral commission was created), the three branches of the federal government were separate and distinct from each other, and neither trenched upon the duties of the others. This was not only the written but the unwritten law of the land, ever respected in the observance.

Times have changed. The present republican administration, rank, rude and sectional, is sugar-coated with an innocently conservative pretense, but it is on every occasion the lineal descendant of federalism and republican centralization. It is announced that the President of the United States is about to proclaim the re-imposition of tariff duties against Venezula, Haiti and Columbia, because those countries do not avail themselves of the reciprocity attachment of the McKinley monstrosity. This is clearly a legislative function which congress delegated to and which is exercised by the president, never intended by the constitution or the patriotic makers of the constitution. It is a function too dangerous to permit without protest, and the stronger the protest the more probable the wrong will be corrected. It sounds too much like Wilhelm's "I am the Government." Indeed, if one man, be he never so competent, can plan an embargo on shipping why can not he legislate wisely in other directions? It is a kingly exercise of authority never intended in this country which ought to be a republic in everything the name signifies. Very likely the supreme court for partisan reasons will re-affirm the validity of the special presidential legislative clause and thus fasten the act upon the republic. If so it will be one additional land mark swept away and one additional monument to centralization erected in the name of freedom, which fast becomes a sham and a pretense under Republican misrule. We never had a president so elevated above the partisan as to be competent to make tax laws, and it is not probable a man endowed with such extra ability ever will be the executive of this country. Much less is good to the whole people to be expected from a Harrisonian exercise of this unconstitutional and unAmerican act of congress. It is a grave danger point.

Alger's Lame Reply.

Mr. Alger's reply is a reply to everything except the record that he left the army just after his commanding officers had recommended his dishonorable discharge. No matter how great the injustice of such a recommendation, it is decisive in the case of a candidate who is asking to be worshiped as a military hero.—St. Louis Republic.

A Way He Has.

Verily Mr. Wanamaker is making a great reputation for himself, but his disposition to get out all the work he possibly can from a postmaster is only in keeping with what he has done for years in his great bargain store with the employes of that establishment.—United States Mail.

Relative Charity.

Jay Gould's $10,000 contribution was about one-five thousandth part of his income. If a man with an income of $2,000 a year should make a contribution of 40 cents to the church he would be making an equal sacrific, but would not get any glory.—Chicago Times.

Just Like the Men.

Mrs. Potter Palmer is in Washington trying to have the world's fair bill amended in some particulars. Among other things she would like more money for the board of lady managers. After all there is not so very much difference between men and women.—Indianapolis Journal.

What Is the Difference?

POLLUTING THE STREAMS.

Manhattan Oil Company in Trouble at St. Marys.

St. Marys, O., March 18.—(Special)—Thomas McDonald, who is here in the interest of the board of public works, filed an affidavit this morning against the Manhattan Oil company and J. C. Livenson, charging them with polluting the water in the reservoir by the oil from their leases.

The cases will be tried in the local court in a few days, and will be watched with great interest.

HILL BOOMERS.

St. Louis, March 18.—A D. B. Hill club has been organized in this city. A resolution was passed extending an invitation to Hon. D. B. Hill to deliver an address at such time as may suit his convenience.

A reply has been received stating that the senator would deliver an address later in the session and expressing his regret at being unable to do so at once.

NEW RAILROAD.

Guthrie, O. T., March 18.—The contract for the construction of the Hutchinson & Southern railway from Anthony, Ks., through Guthrie to Denison, Tex., a distance of 322 miles, has been filed here. It is signed by H. A. Christy, president, and C. N. Davis secretary, and Henry McTighe, of Brooklyn, N. Y., contractor.

RESCUING THE CREW.

Ashbury Park, N. J., March 18.—The stranded clipper Windermere is slowly working in towards the beach. The life saving crews have shot a line over her and are bringing the crew ashore. The crew numbers 43, including her officers. The surf is very high and strong.

ABOUT PEOPLE.

Washington P. Gregg is said to have never missed a meeting of the Boston common council during the 43 years he was clerk of that body. He is now critically ill.

Senator Hill, of New York, will deliver the anniversary address at the commemoration of the Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence at Charlotte, N. C., May 20.

Mrs. Felton has canceled her engagements to deliver addresses in Georgia in behalf of the world's fair because of the idiotic opposition of some male cranks who object to women speaking in public.

Waldo Adams, eastern manager of the Adams Express company, died in Boston on Wednesday evening. He was born in that city in 1836, and when 18 years of age entered the express business established by his father, Alvin Adams.

The Rev. T. E. Clough, a well-known Baptist missionary who labored in India and who is staying in Minneapolis at present, is said to resemble Secretary Blaine greatly, and when in Washington has been mistaken repeatedly for the Maine statesman.

N. M. Brockway and R. L. Buzard, wealthy lumbermen of Pennsylvania, intend to buy a lot in Chicago and build a house for the accommodation of their families during the world's fair. They reason that after the show is over they can sell the property for an advance.

The Duke de la Roca, a grandee of Spain who may stand bonneted before the king, has retired to a monastery. He was a prominent figure in Madrid society and something of a politician, and retired disgusted at the failure of his motion in the Cortez to reduce the civil list and the consequent feeling against him at the court and with the aristocracy.

MENTIONED ON THE STREETS.

That Toledo is losing some good citizens through death just now.

That the gold-cure institute has several patients "taking their medicine."

That the gas committee will not be unanimous for the purchase of pumps.

That Sheriff Stuart had out his flag yesterday in honor of the day we celebrate.

That social life is rather quiet, notwithstanding the efforts of a few to keep it alive.

That hotel business is picking up, the traveling men being on the move once more.

That ex-Sergeant Gage is receiving proposals for the new voice he has in his possession.

That lectures have drawn larger audiences this season than has been the case for years.

That Will Stackhouse grew worse when he heard of the good time enjoyed at the cadet reception.

That the police commissioners have an elephant on their hands in the shape of the old patrol wagon.

That the merchants are praying for a let-up on this cold wave—so they can spread out the novelties.

That Tom Rooney is making a dash for the Fifth ward alderman nomination at the democratic primaries.

That there is a mania in Toledo for turning up missing at present, which is unpleasant to contemplate.

That the press delegates who recently visited Toledo have not gotten through telling of their stay in the city.

That Sam Brady is making an extra bag to hold the receipts of the Wilbur opera show at Wheeler's next week.

That the would-be police clerks on both sides are making known their wants to the men of influence in the several wards.

That the democratic primaries will be held to-morrow, from 4 to 8 p. m., at the places designated by the city central committee.

That James A. Daily is willing to assist in the organizing of the Hill forces in Toledo. He is a great admirer of the New York senator.

That Joe Huber had a new whistling act for the cadet reception, but the heathenish band shut it off by starting up Boom ta ra. Joe will keep it a year.

That the National Union people now have an organ of their own in the Tri-Color, which will be put to good use in keeping the order before the people.

That the veteran cadets are in favor of banquets and band concerts at shorter intervals. Some of them are pressing the officers to get up a little show on their own hook.

That Councilman Caldwell would like to return to the council from the Sixth ward, but when he thinks of the support he received for police judge on the other side of the river last spring his heart grows faint.

That Messrs. Johnson and Caldwell, both republican candidates for the police clerkship, were at the station this morning and each had a private conference with Sam Tanner, who is also a candidate for the same place.

THE STREET PAVING BURDEN.

The history of street improvement legislation is one that is discreditable to the intelligence as well as the honesty of the men we elect to care for our public affairs.

The average citizen supposes that his interests are limited to the street he lives on, and that when the improvement of some other street is being discussed he can complacently look on, as it will cost him nothing.

The time was, possibly, when this was the case, but when we sent Griffin to Columbus this was changed. Up to that time the total expense of improving a street was assessed upon abutting property, but Griffin's bill saddled the cost of paving street intersections upon every taxpayer in the city, by having this paid from the general fund.

The result is that the tax-payers of Toledo, without exception, pay more than 20 per cent. of the cost of all street improvements since the passage of Griffin's bill, and are thus directly interested in every measure for street improvement brought before the council, no matter where that street is.

Here are the proportions of the debt saddled upon the general fund for street improvements during the three years past. Bonds issued for street improvements:

	To be paid by property owners.	Paid out of city's gen. fund.
In 1889....	$ 155,014	$ 55,088
In 1890....	335,558	43,156
In 1891....	741,827	191,850
For 3 years..	$1,212,399	$290,694

Possibly it may comfort those who live in mud-bound streets to know that part of their taxes, next June, is to meet the interest upon the city's share of the cost of paving other streets.

In addition to this, however, and more glaringly wrong, is this fact: About $20,000 to $30,000 annually, for the past three or four years, of the bonds that should have been paid by abutting property has been delinquent, and there is nothing to be done but for the general fund of the city to pay this deficiency. Our council has not yet found time to give the matter any consideration, nor have steps been taken, that I can learn, to compel the delinquents to pay their paving tax. So we are, as a city, not only paying for paving street intersections, but also paying the bills of individual property owners for paving before their lots.

In a council composed of disinterested men, with ability enough to run a grocery store, one would think that no improvements would be entered upon until guarantees were obtained from those working for the improvement that the full expense would be borne by those who are getting the benefits. But there is no street improved that claims are not put in for damages and abatements, which are allowed and paid out of the general fund. It appears to be a common saying around the city offices that the men who do the most work in lobbying through a street paving job are the first to file their claims for damages and abatements.

I am told that a street now under consideration for improvement is a fair sample of the way such work is ordered. It is in such condition that a heavy share of the burden of improving it must necessarily fall upon the general fund, yet no one has suggested to the men pushing the work through that either the abutting property should pay all the cost, or the work be put off till the city had money to spend for private interests.

As our bonds sell slowly, a paving company graciously offers to take bonds in payment of the work, but a large amount of paving was done last year because the agent of a paving company assured the council that his firm would wait for its money till our bonds were sold. It was not long, however, after the work was done before the company demanded its money, and not seeing that coming gave formal notice that it would bring suit against the city if not paid at once. The council hadn't a scrap of paper by which the company could be held under the promises made by its agent, and so paid Spitzer & Co. $4,700 commission to sell the bonds and save the city from being sued! Such are the gratitude and promises of paving companies when they have to deal with a Toledo council.

If we had in our council men of brains, business sense, independence of character and honesty of purpose the people would be shown the schemes that appear there every week. Such men might serve but one term, and would not lie upon a bed of roses, but they would be respected by every man in the city whose respect was worth having. They would not be able to defeat all the bills that should be defeated, but they would make jobbery less bold and public robbery more disreputable. Public office should be a sacred trust.

Tax-payers of Toledo, what are you going to do about it?

THE POET OF NATURE

Wordsworth—The Best Interpreter of Life

In Its Lowly Estate—The Fourth Lecture in Professor Demmon's Course.

The audience at the High school hall last evening was all in numbers and appreciative quality that its predecessors have been. Prof. Demmon has taught his class to prepare themselves for the study of an author by a preparatory understanding of that author's environment, the influences that bore upon him, his own character and limitations and, in a measure, the readers and critics whom he expected to take his work in hand. More than all this, says the Professor, to thoroughly appreciate a poet, you must be in full harmony with his moods—must love him and enjoy the subjects he enjoys.

The literary and social characteristics of the Eighteenth century were first considered. It was a century of skepticism and quackery. Strong descriptive passages of the spirit of the times were read from Carlyle in prose and from Keats in verse. Some thoughts from Frederic Harrison's defense of the 18th century were read; everything frivolous went into literature. It was a century of prose, and reaction against the extravagance of the preceding one, the Elizabethan age. It was also a time of great industrial growth and activity—of the steam engine, the spinning jenny. When the stirring event[illegible] year 1789 were in progress, W[illegible]h was a youth of 19 years a[illegible]e university. His home was [illegible]utiful lake country, his speech was with common folk and here a democratic sentiment took root and had grown. Wordsworth was, as truly as Burns, the poet of the man, regardless of the guinea's stamp. In Paris in 1791, he became imbued with the spirit of the French revolution and speedily developed into a fierce Girondist Fortunately for him and for the world, his money gave out and he went back to the soothing quietude of his own fields and hills.

He chose homely subjects and his tender treatment of them appeals to the heart. So great is Prof. Demmon's sympathy with the poet's sentiments and his inspired manner of voicing them, he confesses there are some poems of Wordsworth he can never read aloud for the choking in his throat.

Wordsworth was the first poet to formulate a theory of poetic diction. Simplicity of expression was his first rule. With the "grand" poets which had preceded him, a maid was a "nymph," her lover a "swain," the air in motion was either a "gale" or a "sigh," a horse was a "neighing steed" and the heroes and heroines comported themselves correspondingly. Wordsworth sweet and limpid verse was like a revolt which some critics thought he carried to the extreme of becoming common-place and inartistic. To the lover of the real and the natural it is refreshing. Later in life he grew more ornate and in his odes and more ambitious work, stately and imposing. The poem of the Grecian wife beseeching the gods for the return of her husband to her arms (Laodamia) was read with fine effect. Matthew Arnold said he would rather have written this poem than to have carven a Greek statue.

Students of Wordsworth were referred to the second volume of Wordsworth's prose works, which, the professor finds, is in the Toledo library (and which, he says, is too rarely found in public collections of books) and in the volume, to the letter of the poet to Christopher North. The Professor read the beautiful lines on the death of Wordsworth, by Matthew Arnold. Questions were answered, essays on the topic of the last lecture were sketched through and announcement made that examinations for the course would take place April 9 and certificates be given.

The session was thoroughly enjoyable and profitable. Whatever may be the apparent coldness of the audience when the lecturer opens his subject, his enthusiasm is infectious and everyone is sorry when the close comes. The topic of the next lecture (Friday evening of next week) is "Sartor Resartus—The Clothes Philosophy," a study of Carlyle.

In exploring Africa Dr. Junker made use of a curiously original system for obtaining maps of the new regions traversed. When on the march he wore a coat provided with numerous pockets for his note-books, watch and compass. From a button hung pencils of different colors—red for his route line, blue for the streams and black for noting the time and direction of his course. At the end of every five minutes of his progress of upward of four thousand miles through equatorial Africa he would enter in his book notes of the direction by compass in which he was going, with fuller notes on the breadth and depth of streams, the character of the surrounding country and the readings of the aneroid and thermometer. In fact he did everything with true German carefulness and patience.

A LIVING TELEPHONE.

THE STRANGE WHIM OF A LUNATIC.

A Man Who Imagines Himself to Be Filled With Electric Wires.

There is a man in one of the state insane asylums whose case presents a sad example. He is a dangerous lunatic now, and the history of his mania is briefly this:

Before the telephone was in actual public service, he became very much interested in the accounts of the scientific experiments with the then imperfect instrument. His interest grew until it gradually absorbed his mind at all times. During this process he showed the symptoms of nervous trouble; in fact, it was due to the weakened state of his nerves that the idea was enabled to seize him with all its force. Had his nerve centers been in good order he would have felt nothing more than the healthy interest which most persons take in such things. But neither he nor his friends, recognizing in his nervous condition the cause of his mania, it was neglected until at length when he actually heard the voice at a telephone, his wits completely deserted him.

At the present time he imagines that a telephone is secreted within him and he holds conversations with an imaginary individual at the other end of the wire. He will shout, "Hello, hello, what's wanted?" and turning around to the visitor, say, "Now, just hear him ring that bell as though I didn't hear him and answer. Hello, hello, down there. Well, if he wont answer, let him go." Then he gets angry and becomes dangerous. In this way a perfectly sane man was allowed to become insane because his nerve malady was neglected.

While this is an extreme case, an exceedingly important moral may be drawn therefrom. It is this: If you suffer with "nerves," don't neglect them. The indications are trifling but full of meaning. Sleeplessness, headaches, poor appetite, pains in the back, weariness, absent-mindedness, a difficulty in remembering names or faces and dizziness at odd moments are all symptoms of nervous disorder and are felt by thousands of people, not because close attention to one particular subject has weakened their nerves, but because the dry, hard routine of business or domestic cares has rendered these delicate threads incapable of fulfilling their proper function. These slight symptoms should not be neglected, but a remedy which reaches the nerves through the blood, thus building up the other organs of the body while strengthening the nerve centers, should be taken. No ordinary blood purifier will answer the purpose. Celery, with the proper medical ingredients possesses all that is necessary for strengthening the nerves, but celery alone will not do it, it must be compounded. This was a discovery of the late Prof. Phelps of Dartmouth college, and it is taken advantage of in the preparation of Paine's celery compound. This medicine strengthens the nerves while purifying the blood, and removes the cause of the headache, sleeplessness or other nervous symptoms. The blood courses through the veins with renewed vigor, infusing fresh life and energy into every limb. It acts on the principles laid down as being right by the greatest scientific thinkers of the day, who give it their indorsement. If this compound be taken when the first symptoms of nervous disorder appear, the growth of the disease will be checked and the system will soon right itself.

A SKETCH.

Your eyes are blue as bluebird's wing;
As sweet your voice as what they sing.

Your lips are red—as red, sweetheart,
As petals yet unblown apart.

Your wealth of hair, as light and fine
As prisoned braids of soft sunshine.

Alike your dainty form and face,
Of perfect mold and faultless grace.

Your heart as pure and spotless quite
As yonder calla lily white.

The famous portrait of Robert Browning painted by Moscheles is now in Chicago, where it is on exhibition in McClurg's bookstore. The prize was secured by Dr. Gunsaulus, the noted Chicago preacher. Mr. Browning considered this the best portrait made of him in his later years, and to the poet's friends and family it is more satisfactory than any other painted of him.

The natural desire of artists to secure interesting "properties" for their studios sometimes leads them into trouble. A case in point is that of Prof. Joseph Koppay, who has painted portraits of several members of the Spanish and Bavarian royal families, of Prince Bismarck and of other distinguished people. He has been sentenced to a month's imprisonment in Constance for purchasing some wood carvings which the seller had no right to dispose of.

Miss Angelina Brooks, whose knowledge of kindergarten methods has rendered her an authority in that line, has been making a study of the curb-stone children of New York. She finds that there are 141,000 boys and girls between the ages of four and six years who spend their lives in the streets of New York and never see the inside of a school. Miss Brooks is making every effort to kindle an interest in these waifs that will result in the establishment for them of free kindergarten schools.

A new alloy which closely resembles gold is composed of one hundred parts of copper and six parts of antimony, which after being melted is fluxed with carbonate of lime in order to increase its density. The alloy can be rolled, forged and soldered in the same manner as gold, and when polished the gold color remains unchanged even after long exposure to ammonia and acid vapors in the atmosphere. The cost of the alloy in the ingot form is stated to be about 25 cents per pound.

The late Henry Doyle, Director-General of the National Gallery of Ireland, was one of those rare connoisseurs who know a good painting when they see it, regardless of the name before the pinxit. One of his achievements was the purchase for a trifling sum at the Cavendish-Bentinck sale of a very fine picture which he had discovered to be the work of a great Italian artist, but which all the other buyers had ignored because it was described in the catalogue under a false name. Another clever purchase was a superb Rembrandt which he picked up cheaply at Brussels.

In the Lake of the Woods country along the Canadain Pacific railway is a wilderness of forest, rock and brushwood, in which a race of wild dogs have established themselves. When the railway was under construction the camps of the workmen had, of course to be frequently moved, and dogs were often left behind, and eventually, like wolves and foxes, found means of sustaining themselves. The animal are large, lean, short-haired, and generally red, or red and white, in color. They are exceedingly wild, and fly on the first approach of man.

Smith, evangelist; Rev. George Lansing Taylor; Bishop Thoburn, of India, and some of the other bishops, with many of the ministers of the contiguous charges will preach and assist in the services.

A PLAIN PRECAUTION.

Either to adopt a plain precaution, one sanctioned by experience and approved by medical men, or to incur the risk of a malady obdurate and destructive in its various forms of intermittent or bilious remittent fever, or dumb ague, which of the two? For every type, for every phase of malaria, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is a specific. It acts promptly—does its work thoroughly. As a defence against the malarial taint it is most effective. Emigrants to and denizens of regions in the west where miasmatic complaints are periodical visitants, should be mindful of this and use the Bitters as a safeguard. For constipation, biliousness, rheumatism, "la grippe," kidney and bladder troubles the Bitters will be found no less useful than in cases of malaria. Against the injurious effects of exposure, bodily or mental, it is also a valuable protection.

IS CATARRH CURABLE?

A Question Often Asked and Fully Answered at Last.

Theory Verified By Practice.

Mr. W. T. Black, of Schuyler county, Ill., writes: "The Pe-ru-na Drug Manufacturing Co., Columbus, O.—It affords me great pleasure to be able to add my testimony to that of many others who have used your medicines. I was afflicted with catarrh for several years. I used about three bottles of Pe-ru-na and some Man-a-lin, and I think I am entirely well. I had been troubled with constipation for several years. I had been dieting for it, but that had failed to do any good. I used Man-a-lin until I became regular, and am now entirely well. I think it cannot be equaled, and I think Pe-ru-na and Man-a-lin are all that are claimed for them. I keep them in the house all the time. Anyone doubting the genuineness of this testimony can write me—enclosing a stamp for reply—and I will answer."

Cases of as long standing as this one often have to take much more than three bottles of Pe-ru-na before a cure is effected, although it is by no means rare that three bottles are sufficient. Notwithstanding that day after day we are in receipt of letters from grateful patients who, like the above, have been cured of catarrh, yet thousands of people go on asking the oft-repeated question, "Can catarrh be cured?" Certainly, catarrh can be cured. Thousands are cured of whom we never hear by taking Pe-ru-na. Thousands are cured who write of the fact, asking us to publish their letters for the benefit of others. But an unnumbered multitude of people whose lives are made miserable by chronic catarrh have yet to hear or become convinced that Pe-ru-na is precisely the remedy for which they have been vainly searching all these years. Pe-ru-na cures; it does not simply relieve temporarily. Once cured by Pe-ru-na and the fortunate individual is permanently well.

A valuable pamphlet of 32 pages, setting forth in detail the treatment of catarrh, coughs, colds, sore throat, bronchitis and consumption, in every phase of the disease, will be sent free to any address by the Pe-ru-na Drug Manufacturing Co. of Columbus, Ohio. This book should be in every household, as it contains a great deal of reliable information as to the cure and prevention of all catarrhal and kindred diseases.

NAPOLEON OF THE FEUD.

A Winchester (Ky.) correspondent of the New York Herald writes as follows:

The man who raised the primitive Kentucky mountaineer custom of the family feud to a fine art and put it on a business basis is living here in comfortable but not ostentatious style.

He came here to stand trial for one of the thirty-odd murders which grew out of the particular feud upon which he employed his genius. He has never stood the trial, but on the contrary has gone into business, and if he ever does face a jury the chances of his conviction will be about one in ten. His name is Benjamin Fulton French, the surviving principal of the famous French-Eversole feud. He is 37 years old, a lawyer and school teacher by profession, a business man by the bent of a marked commercial aptitude. Against his youth, energy and ability there is only one reason to be urged why he should not some day occupy John Griffin Carlisle's seat in the United States senate. That reason is that he is a republican, as Joseph C. Eversole, his violently departed antagonist, was, and as almost all of the following of the pair from the mountains of Perry, Breathitt, Getcher, Harlan and the other eastern counties are or were.

To understand the beginnings of Mr. French's conception of what a feud ought to be we must go back to the year 1873, when Mr. French was a very young and quiet man, and came, at the age of 19, from Breathitt county to Hazard, the county seat of Perry, to teach school.

The Eversoles controlled the politics, the judicature and the commerce of Hazard. That is to say, Joseph C. Eversole was a man of sufficient prominence to have run on the state ticket for commonwealth attorney and was talked of for congress. His brother, George W., was county judge, and, more than all this, Joseph owned the village store, the only medium of sale and purchase between the inhabitants of Hazard, and most of Perry county for that matter, and the great marts of the country, the nearest approach to which by rail was from a starting point at London, 70 miles away. The Eversoles, therefore, paid little heed to the rise of Benjamin Fulton French, and even permitted him to be elected county attorney, an office which he held for several years after his admission to the bar.

When the young man afterward applied for a clerkship in the store they still saw little reason to fear that a county with less than 8,000 people might not be big enough to hold both themselves and him. Young French went to "clerking" for the Eversoles and immediately began to make friends. They were not all mere mountaineer friends, either.

As long ago as 1882 northern capital began to edge the way of its selfish beneficence into the mountains of eastern Kentucky. The sterile soil was rich with ore and a syndicate came over the hills after it. The syndicate's agent found in Eversole's popular young clerk the assistant he was after, and through him the purchase of 40,000 acres of mountain land was managed.

The commission on the sale made the clerk a capitalist. Then Joseph C. Eversole awoke. He demanded a share of the syndicate commission from the clerk. The clerk calmly refused. Then the storekeeper brought suit, claiming a verbal agreement to divide the proceeds of the operation. The clerk defeated it. He won. This in a county whose politics, judicature, commerce, had been in Eversole's hands! It preyed on the Eversole mind. The head of the family proposed to leave the ungrateful little mountain republic. The clerk promptly bought him out. Joseph C. Eversole went to Kansas and Benjamin Fulton French reigned in his stead as the political and commercial magnate of Perry county. This was on May 1, 1884.

For eight months Mr. French held undisputed sway in Hazard. He had, as he says, an agreement with his former employer that the latter would not open a store in the town for a year. In fact he did not expect him back at all.

But in March, 1885, Joseph Eversole returned from Kansas. He had not found the state to his liking. Without so much as a suggestion of "by your leave" he opened a store directly across the street, and his hitherto successful rival began to notice that a good many of his customers returned to their old allegiance. It was the young man's first check on the conquest of Perry county, and it wounded his pride. The wound was made deeper when he found that he, too, had a clerk who could not be depended upon. The clerk's name was Bob May. His pretty young wife used to come to the store and the storekeeper used to talk to her. This, according to Mr. French, fanned a causeless flame of jealousy in the heart of the clerk, who accordingly transferred his services, such customers as he controlled and his knowledge of his employer's business secrets, to his rival across the way.

But Bob May had a different story to tell of the cause of his leaving. The tale that he unfolded to Eversole was that French had endeavored to bribe him (May) to put him (Eversole) out of the way.

Both parties began to prepare for serious trouble after Bob May had gone to Eversole with his story of the murder bribe.

Finally Joseph Eversole fired the first shot, in a very unnecessary way. He fired it at John Kilgore, a French partisan, who had come into his store, and, creating a disturbance, had been ordered out. He pulled his pistol in the street, and in a moment the head of the great Eversole family was out of his store and actively exchanging shots with an obscure and almost nameless partisan of his foe. The front of Eversole's store was bullet riddled that night, and that night, too, Kilgore left town. French at this time was down in Louisville buying goods. When he returned he kept to his house until the armistice which always follows a pitched battle was declared.

Then he ste about organizing his side of the feud. Any man who would fire a Winchester at another man for $1.50 a day and his board was welcome to his standard, and if he had no Winchester, French would find one for him.

It was in the early days of June, 1886, that Mr. French went over to London and telegraphed to Louisville for guns to arm his mercenaries. The enemy learned of his departure, and saw in his return an opportunity to nip his warlike preparations in the bud and end the feud in the Eversole favor at once. So, just before dawn of June 7, five white men and one colored man stole out of their houses in and about Hazard, and each with his revolver under his arm shuffled through the chilly dew that clothed the dust of the mountain road and the close herbage of the mountain roadside to a turn in the highway a few miles east of the hamlet.

It was a long and weary wait behind the low ambuscade of the logs and a brush heap. Finally a clatter of hoofs was heard around the turn in the road, and every man's hand sought the pump-handle and made ready to quench the fires of French ambition with a 45-calibre stream of lead.

The horseman rode into sight. A suppressed growl of disappointed hate set all the twigs of the brush heap a-quiver.

"H—ll! It's not French. It's Si Gayheart."

"Well, d——n him. He's a friend o' his and we've put in a day on it."

Two hours later Silas Gayheart's riderless horse galloped up to his master's house. His master's body lay bullet riddled by the turn in the road. It was the first death of the feud.

Open awr was the immediate result, though the Eversole faction pretended to give up their arms.

Peace was again declared and a pledge signed to keep it. Peace and pledge alike were broken when Robert Jamieson, a French partisan, was ambushed to his death in the same manner as Silas Gayheart had been. This murder was followed by that of John Wilder, another supporter of French.

One cold morning in the winter of 1887 a man rode into Hazard and put up his horse and unpacked his saddle bags at French's house. He was an old friend of French and his name was Rev. William Campbell. Most of the mountaineers, however, called him "Bill, the Baptist Preacher." His host introduced him to another guest named Deane. Jailor Jesse Fields dropped in with a warrant signed by Judge Eversole for the arrest of Deane on a charge of felony.

The muscular Baptist preacher had become interested in his fellow guest and followed him and his guard to the jail. There, strange to say, Joseph C. Eversole, his younger brother John and a partisan of theirs named John Campbell were waiting. The preacher denounced the arrest and the judge, and when Joseph Eversole spoke up for George, the brotherly ornament of the Kentucky bench, "Bill the Baptist" promptly knocked him down.

It was the preacher's last blow at the flesh or the devil, for at the moment that his thus dishonored adversary got to his feet he drew his revolver and shot the muscular Christian dead in his tracks.

Thus French had been murdered twice by proxy. The first time was when Silas Gayheart was ambuscaded. This time the warrant strategy had been planned in the hope that he would come from his house to take the part of his guest.

Then there was a year's truce. The fortune of war, as far as the death-roll went, had been all on the side of the Eversoles so far. Not a single life had the French faction yet to answer for, while Gayheart, Jamieson, Wilder and "Bill, the Baptist Preacher," were all to the credit to the elder house.

So there was no thought of more than a normal state of danger in the minds of Joseph C. Eversole and Nick Combs when, on June 15, 1888, they saddled their horses and rode out of town on the way to Hyden Court House, Leslie county.

Troublesome creek brawls on its way to the head waters of the Kentucky river, a mile outside of Hazard. There is a high cliff near where the bridge crosses the stream, and its foot is thickly grown with brush. The men had ridden at a fair gait, and it was but ten minutes after they left Eversole's store that they reached the bridge.

As they crossed it a masked battery seemed to open from the copse at the foot of the cliff. A bunch of buckshot fractured Eversole's skull, and he fell dead from his horse. Nick Combs' foot caught in the stirrup, and his mount galloped, dragging him a quarter of mile before the girth mercifully broke and left the outlaw to die in comparative peace in the road.

Then the Eversoles went on with their random and purposeless but picturesque bushwhacking. French's life they despaired of taking for the time, but they lay for three days behind a "blind" of brush and logs on the hill above "Shade" Combs' house. "Shade" was warned and kept indoors for two of the days. On the third, thinking that they were gone, he ventured out and was shot down. In November of the same year they shot Elijah Morgan dead from ambuscade much as they killed Silas Gayheart.

Meantime three and possibly four of the Eversole faction were removed in a way that showed skill, direction and forethinking recognition of the fact that law and order might some day be restored in the mountains.

Then came, in October, 1889, a murder which exemplied the difficulty of getting out of the feud when once in it. Jim Livings, an old man of the Eversole faction, also known as Linville Livings, had become tired of war and wanted to move into a more peaceful country. So he and his son Jim started for Laurel county one pleasant autumn day. Three miles out of town they were ambushed, and old man Livings' horse departed from the usual practice of Perry county horses under like circumstances, neither ran home riderless nor dragged his master by the stirrup. Instead of these commonplace proceedings he ambled up the street of Hazard with the dead and bleeding body of his master still in the saddle. Then he stopped in front of the Eversole and opposite the French store.

Another peace had been patched up. Court was to sit in Hazard, and French was to be tried for the murder of Joseph Eversole and Nick Combs. That, the heads of the faction concluded, would insure his presence in town—something which had grown to be rare—but would by no means insure his conviction. Accordingly, Whittaker, by his own story, was called to Judge Eversole's house and asked to submit to a sham arrest for the purpose of allowing an armed guard to ride into town, ostensibly to watch him, really to kill French if necessary if he stood at the bar of the court.

When court met 25 heavily armed men of Judge Eversole's posse rode into town, guarding vigilantly their decoy prisoner. All of Perry county who could be on hand were in the street.

But there was disappointment in store for both the sightseers and the desperadoes. When the case of The People against French et al. was called there was no response for the principal defendant.

It was another triumph of mind. The strategic genius had "seen over the bill." He had heard there was to be "trouble," forfeited his bail and stayed away.

It was the last chance of the Eversoles. Their best laid plan had gone completely agley.

Whittaker, the sham prisoner, was liberated and got drunk. He fired his revolver at Henry Davidson. The latter responded. Women and children screamed and fled. Non-partisans sought cover. Every French and Eversole factionist when the trial had brought to the county seat got out his weapon, and the town became an Indian battlefield.

The main incident of the day was when John Eversole and Bud Grey dashed into the court house and fired point blank at Jailer Fields, who, though he had arrested "Bill the Baptist," was a French partisan, and Bob Profit. The hunted men jumped from the second story window and fled under fire to Fields' house. There Joe Davidson, who had reached cover before them, showed his marksmanship.

This time he killed Ed Campbell at 300 yards in the dusk. Campbell had winged Jailer Fields in the right shoulder and put his head out from behind a tree to vent his relenting

Crops Abroad.

Our clippings from foreign papers herein are as late as March 4. Spain and Italy Italy are the countries that present the best premises for a rop. France, Germany and Prussia do not offer so much encouragement, but it is yet too early to determine. In acreage England and Russia are deficient.

Ohio Crop.

In this state, whether credited or not by dealers, wheat has been injured, but that question must also be relegated to the future for actual results. Ohio farmers are opposed to reports by the state agricultural bureau, for fear of effect upon prices. But it works both ways, and now the chances are the truth would help the price.

From Toledo to central Illinois the reports coincide that wheat has been hurt. How much cannot now be settled.

The Markets To-day.

Wheat opened weak, east and west, and declined 3-4c from the closing price of yesterday.

The decline started good buying, based almost wholly upon crop damage reports, under the influence of which the market turned and the loss was not only recovered but closed at Chicago 1-2c above yesterday.

Corn was also weak and declined with wheat, but regained the loss and closed about as yesterday.

Foreign markets do not present any important change. In New York March wheat closed 1-2c and May 3-8c higher. March and May corn 1-8c lower. May oats 1-4c higher.

In Chicago May wheat closed 1-2c higher. March corn 1-8c higher and May 1-8c lower. May oats 1-4c higher.

In Toledo there has been active trading in wheat for future delivery both for May and July and the deal has been about equally divided. Opening trades were at yesterday's closing prices from which the market fell off 1-2c, but under a new and good demand the decline was checked and before the close the market gained 1 1-8c from the lowest point, and 5-8 above yesterday on May and 3-8c on July. May opened at 91 1-8, sold down to 90 5-8, and closed at 9- 3-4; July sold at 87 and closed at 86 7-8.

Cash wheat was not in demand for shipment, but some sales were made in exchange for May at the same price. At the close the market for No. 2 soft was about 91 1-2c, a gain of 1-2c. Nothing done in other grades.

Corn—No. 2 at 40c, May at 39 1-2@ 39 1-4c, No. 3 at 39 1-2c, No. 4 at 38@ 38 3-4c, No. 3 yellow at 40c.

The supper was choice and dainty in every dish and appointment; the souvenirs at each plate were cut-glass bon-bon cups, on the handle of which was tied a knot of green ribbon in deference to the day. Mrs. Townsend has completed her 67th year and would be taken for a lady of fifty. Piano music by Miss Nell Olewine, of Grand Rapids, enlivened the evening. Mrs. L. A TOLEDO MESSENGER

Badly Burned On a Wabash Express Car

While Saving Valuables—The United States Express Takes In New Ohio Towns—Other Railroad Information.

George Tally, of this city an express messenger running out of Toledo on the Wabash, was brought home yesterday badly burned. After the Wabash train left Toledo Wednesday night fire broke out in the express car. The cause is not known. Mr. Tally while saving the valuable matter was severely burned. Some freight was burned, but the valuable matter was saved. Mr. Tally is at his home, 535 Walbridge avenue. His friends hope for his recovery.

Reaching New Ohio Towns.

F. G. Benedict, U. S. express agent at Toledo, gives notice to-day that the United States Express company has extended service over the Pittsburg & Western railroad, succeeding Wells, Fargo & Co., and now reaches by direct line of its own such important towns in Ohio as Akron, Cuyahoga Falls, Chardon, Kent, Leavittsburg, Niles, Newton Falls, Orrville, Painesville, Ravenna, Warren and Youngstown.

Want the Lake Shore Enjoined.

The transportation committee of the Boston Chamber of Commerce reported to-day a recommendation that the chamber enter suit in the United States court praying that the Lake Shore railroad be enjoined from maintaining their present east-bound freight tariff on the ground that it unlawfully discriminates against Boston in favor of rival cities.

Cinders Here and There.

Commercial Agent C. T. Wight, of the B. & O., is in Chicago to-day.

The new train on the T. & O. C. between Toledo and Bucyrus is to meet the travel to the new Hatton oil fields. It will leave Toledo at 7:30 a. m., and returning arrive here at 6:30 p. m.

General Manager J. M. Ferris, of the Ohio Central lines, is at Columbus.

The coal meeting at Pittsburg will come off Monday and Tuesday, when rates for the season will be agreed upon.

A meeting of the compilers and rate clerks in this territory will be held at Chicago April 5 to make changes in the quarterly issue of joint rate sheets to take effect May 1.

Geo. Osborn, of the Wabash; C. C. Gridley, of the Columbus, Hocking Valley & Toledo; Frank Janes and Mr. Steinberg, of the Pennsylvania, are at Cleveland to-day attending the lime and iron meeting.

General Manager A. G. Blair, of the Wheeling & Lake Erie, is at Cleveland to-day.

It is estimated that between $6,000,000 and $7,000,000 will be spent this season on the Pennsylvania lines in improvements. A portion of this expenditure is in anticipation of heavy world's fair traffic.

HAS POPE RETURNED?

The Question That is Going the Rounds.

He Was Seen On the Street and a Citizen Spoke to Him—Mrs. Pope Talks.

Is E. A. Pope in the city?

This is a question that is going the rounds over the city to-day.

It was reported that Mr. Pope came in on the Chicago train over the Lake Shore last evening, and also that R. B. Mitchell had seen him.

In conversation with a Bee Mr. Mitchell said: "Yes, sir; I saw Mr. Pope not half an hour ago and spoke to him."

A Bee called at Mr. Pope's residence, and was ushered into Mrs. Pope's presence. She looks haggard and careworn; the dark circles around her eyes speaking of sleepless nights and constant worry. Miss Pope also looks very bad, the agony of suspense telling in her appearance.

Mrs. Pope said: "I have been very ill for three weeks past, and this misfortune prostrated me. On advice of my physician I have not read any of the papers and nothing about my husband's affairs. Neither have we the slightest knowledge of his whereabouts. I am positive that he is laboring under temporary mental derangement, and is no more accountable for his actions of late than a babe."

"Have you noticed anything queer in his actions of late?"

"His actions have been nothing but queer, and I am certain that he would never have left the city in this manner had he been in his right mind."

The investigation of the accounts is still in process. There will be a shortage, that is certain, but just how much has not yet been determined.

The agents have been working earnestly and have a very fair idea of what the shortage will be, each pursuing the inspection on his own account. The following is an estimate of what the shortage will be:

	Shortage.	Bond.
Niagara	$1,500	$2,000
Home	800	1,000
Lancaster	600	1,000
Imperial	600	1,000

In the reign of Henry VIII. the use of sable was forbidden to any below a viscount. A pelisse of sables, the property of the late emperor Nicholas of Russia, displayed in the exhibition of 1851, was valued at $10,000. A coat lined with sables is often worth from $1,500 to $2,000. A set of sable tails can hardly be sold for less than $250.

The Berlin correspondent of the London Times says that the German educational bill is viewed with profound distrust by the great mass of the nation; that the Prussian diet does not represent public opinion on this matter, and that the "psychological moment" for the reappearance of Prince Bismarck in public life is at hand. If Bismarck should take his place in the upper house as an opponent of the measure he would undoubtedly occupy the position of leader of the German nation.

The remarkable growth which, till within two years, was brought about principally by one person telling another, is a monument to Garfield Tea's merits.

Should be provided with Ayer's Pills. No other aperient is in such general demand or so highly recommended by the profession. Mild but thorough in operation, these pills are the best of all remedies for constipation, biliousness, heartburn, indigestion, flatulency, loss of appetite, liver complaint, and sick headache. They break up colds, fevers, and malaria, relieve rheumatism and neuralgia, and are indispensable to travelers, either by land or sea. Sugar-coated and compounded of the purest vegetable cathartics, they may be taken with impunity by old and young. Physicians recommend these pills in preference to any other. H. W. Hersh, Judsonia, Ark., says: "In 1853, by the advice of a friend, I began the use of Ayer's Pills as a remedy for biliousness, constipation, high fevers, and colds. They served me better than anything I had previously tried, and I have used them in attacks of that sort ever since."

You would not suspect it from the taste; there is cod-liver oil in Scott's Emulsion.

It looks like cream; it is like cream. Cream is bits of butter covered with something else—you do not taste the butter. Scott's Emulsion is drops of cod-liver oil covered with glycerine.

Cream is an easier food than butter, because it is in bits. Scott's Emulsion is cod-liver oil made easy; the drops are invisibly fine; they do not resist digestion.

Will you read a book on it? Free.
